ICBC going up for Victorians

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Victoria drivers will be facing higher auto insurance rates when a new bill ending discrimination in setting auto insurance premiums introduced Wednesday is fully in force.

Victoria, with a low accident total that has resulted in low insurance rates, is one of the areas that will face higher premiums under the new system.

In introducing Bill 33, the Automobile Insurance Non-Discrimination Act, Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy said she will not allow one area to benefit because of discrimination against another area.

But full enactment of the new bill is still several years down the road, Premier Bill Bennett said.

First to go will be the discrimination against the under-25 drivers.

That could be in effect by the next insurance year, although Bennett said he is giving the Insurance Corporation of B.C. and private insurers plenty of time to prepare for the changes.

Over the next few years, discrimination based on sex, marital status and area of residence will be struck from the insurance rate books.

Bennett said the regional discrimination will likely be the last to go.

ICBC public information chief Bev Penhall said the knee-jerk reaction that all other premiums will automatically jump when the discriminatory rate structures are ended isn't necessarily true.

Although he admitted the extra revenues generated by the higher fees charged underage drivers and other groups now deemed to be discriminated against amounts to millions of dollars annually, Penhall said ICBC is currently investigating different ways of compensating that loss.

He said private insurance companies are convinced a general rate increase is inevitable, but ICBC isn't so sure. He said he is unable to elaborate because the government-controlled corporation is still examining the alternatives.

But he hinted there could be some surprises when the new rates are established.

McCarthy said the aim of the new bill is to end all classifications of drivers except for one — good and bad drivers.

"We believe that a young, safe driver should pay the same for his car insurance as a mature, safe driver," she said.

Private insurers will be forced to comply with the regulations at the same time as ICBC.

Bennett said the bill is the fulfilment of a long-standing Social Credit promise that like the court system, says no one is presumed guilty until he or she has had an accident.

"There will no longer be guilt by association," the premier said.

Bennett conceded rates in some areas will have to go up, but the increases will be phased in over a period of time.

The decreases for those who benefit from the ending of the discrimination will be more evident, he said.

Bennett compared the rate structure to the rates changed by B.C. Hydro.

Rates are the same all over the province although it is obviously cheaper to service some areas than others.

Like hospitals and schools, all British Columbians share the benefits and spread the costs.

Bennett said he is expecting opposition from some private insurers because the government is going against old, established ways.

OLD-STYLE crank starter made lots of drivers cranky way back in the early 1900s when bruised knuckles and cracked wrists resulted from attempts to get engines moving. Youngsters watching Reg Potts try to start up 1913 Federal probably thought he was winding up a giant rubber band. Sponsoring cost for Viet family put at $12,000

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Canadians interested in sponsoring a refugee should be prepared for an $8,000 to $10,000 dent in their pocketbooks.

That's the amount Victoria immigration officer Gerald Elliot says a typical family of four may cost sponsors in the first year.

Some church leaders feel the figure could be even higher.

Canon Bob MacRae, rector of St. John's Anglican estimates the average outlay will be about $12,000.

"It's a huge committment," he said in an interview Wednesday, "and one which I don't think many people are aware of."

MacRae, who is Canadian representative on the World Council of Churches's commission on inter-church aid, refugee and world services, said unless the government is prepared to provide more financial help to sponsoring citizens, the plan to admit 50,000 Indochinese refugees over the next two years may not be realized.

The government has agreed to sponsor one refugee for each brought into Canada under private sponsorship.

The total program could cost as much as $200 million jointly shared by the public and private sectors.

MacRae noted the private sponsor signs a binding contract with the federal government promising to pay all living, medical and resettle-

Carter firings begin

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Carter today accepted the resignations of Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and HEW Secretary Joseph Califano in the first changes in his heralded administration reshuffling.

Patricia Roberts Harris, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, will replace Califano, the White House announced.

In further evidence of the shakeup that began Tuesday at the cabinet level, administration officials were instructed Wednesday to rate high-level employees on everything from average work hours to ability to get along with other employees.

The two resignations — actually firings — were apparently the first step in the moves that Carter has begun in an attempt to gain public support for his presidency and win re-election in 1980.

Ordered by newly-appointed Chief of Staff, Hamilton Jordan, and delivered in sealed packages marked "eyes only," the 30-question forms will be used to evaluate personnel down to the deputy assistant secretary level.

The 30 questions provided an insight into the values that Carter prizes in employees.

Hard work, intelligence, stability and creativity were stressed. So were flexibility, ego, and a willingness to carry out policy with which the official personally disagreed.

For instance, one question asked what percentage of

Parks, woods closed

Logging companies today closed off most of their land and six regional parks have been closed or partially closed because of tinder dry conditions in South Vancouver Island forests.

Logging companies are also confining logging operations to early morning shifts because of the high fire hazards.

While there have been no serious fires on southern Vancouver Island fire protection area, which takes in Jordan River and the Gulf Islands, a two-acre blaze on the south side of Triangle Mountain Wednesday afternoon did cause some concern.

It was only brought under control after four ground tankers and 30 men were brought in to fight it.

Saanich firemen Wednesday evening also extinquished three grass fires believed started by careless smokers.

Regional parks foreman Bert Image said the upland areas of East Sooke Park are closed to the public.

Francis Park, Horth Hill, Mill Hill, Bear Hill and Thetis Lake Park trails, are closed.

Canadians living longer

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians are living longer, but women will continue to outlive men, say the latest mortality tables prepared by Statistics Canada.

The new figures show women's life spans have risen by more than a year to 77.48 years from 76.36 years in the old tables. Men will live an average 70.19 years, up from 69.34 years.

The revisions are based on the 1976 census and deaths between 1975 and 1977. The last statistics were based on the 1971 census and deaths between 1970 and 1972.

Skateboard champs part of tube day fun

Skateboard champions will display their skills at the finish line of the Great Inner Tube Race on Sunday, July 29.

They will be part of an hour-long variety show in Kinsmen's Gorge Park.

The Pepsi skateboarding team has agreed to put on a display while spectators are waiting for the inner tube racers to come into view.

There are 10 days until race day and six days until July 25, the deadline for filling out an official entry form.

Net proceeds from the $5 entry fee go to amateur teams in the district. Most local teams are entering the inner tube race.

Contestants are 16 or older and wear life jackets. The race, by teams of two paddlers on an inner tube, begins at 1:15 p.m. Sunday, July 29, in the Gorge.

The event is organized by Hampton Park Hustlers and sponsored by the Times. Further information can be obtained by phoning Hustlers spokesman Bob Painton at 385-4521 or Al Forrest at the Times at 382-3131.

Alert Bay doctor to keep his licence

VANCOUVER (CP) — The doctor found negligent by a coroner's jury in the death of an 11-year-old native Indian girl at Alert Bay will not have his medical licence suspended.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of British Columbia found Dr. Jack Pickup is competent and demonstrated more than adequate skills in diagnosis and management, said a statement issued today by college registrar Dr. J. A. Hutchison.

The inquest found Renee Smith died Jan. 22 of peritonitis and a ruptured appendix "due to negligence on the part of Dr. Pickup to supply adequate medical care and procedures," three days after she was admitted to St. George's Hospital in Alert Bay with severe abdominal pains.

The college statement said certain specific recommendations were made to Dr. Pickup, the only medical practitioner at Alert Bay located on Cormorant Island, off the east coast of Vancouver Island.

Dr. Hutchison said one recommendation related to the fact that Alert Bay is no longer isolated and it is easier to send critically-ill patients out to hospitals with better facilities for surgery.

The other, he said, was personal.

There was evidence at the inquest last month that Dr. Pickup had a drinking problem, but Dr. Hutchison said a provincial joint hospitals advisory committee found no evidence that Pickup was ever impaired by alcohol while practising at St. George's hospital.

The joint committee report, tabled in the legislature Tuesday, said native Indians at Alert Bay should have more input into health care there.

However, it recommended against holding a public inquiry as called for by Indian spokesmen following the girl's death.

Indians in Alert Bay repeated their call Wednesday for a full public inquiry and Nimpkish band leader Roy Cranmer said he did not think the appointment of Rev. Eric Powell as the personal representative of Health Minister Bob McClelland "would change things too much around here."

The college statement said there was no record of any complaints against Pickup prior to the Renee Smith case.

"Although the college has no authority to direct physicians, there will be a continuing effort to find another physician for this area to provide relief . . . and so that a choice of physicians is available," it said.

"They would hope that their action (in making recommendations) will help this community to recover from the tribulations that have beset it in recent months."

Beat prices name of game

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Commission on Inflation, the government's price watchdog agency would like to introduce a new game: Beat the Consumer Price Index.

Every month, when the government releases its latest cost-of-living figures, as measured by the consumer price index, people will decide: "I can keep my personal cost-of-living increase far below that."

It shouldn't be hard, said George Orser, commission executive director in an interview Thursday. For example:

— If beef prices get too high, the consumer can substitute pork or chicken.

— When out-of-season oranges get expensive as now, the consumer can switch to locally-grown fruit.

— When prices of non-vital products exceed the personal tolerance level of the consumer, just don't buy them.

Orser finds it disturbing many people assume any price increase reflected in the index automatically finds its way into their household budget.

The imaginary Statistics Canada shopper who buys the "basket of goods and services" — the 400 items assumed by government to be typical of an average consumer's monthly purchases — has no option but to purchase the same products every trip.

The index includes many items that can easily be avoided or postponed — such as jogging shoes, disposable diapers and doughnuts.

'Beat the CPI' is typical of the style of the commission, Orser says. It believes the best way to get a handle on inflation is by persuasion, not searching out culprits then pointing its finger.

Since the commission was established in March, it has not found a single price increase or wage settlement excessively high.

Somoza's troops fleeing

Times News Services

MANAGUA — Triumphant Sandinista guerrillas reached the heart of Managua this morning, stalking national guard holdouts in the bunker compound from which President Anastasio Somoza had ruled his country with an iron hand.

The peal of church bells before dawn proclaimed a Sandinista guerrilla takeover in Managua's outer districts.

Within hours hundreds of fearful national guardsmen were tossing their uniforms aside and scattering from the compound, which served as military headquarters.

Gunfire broke out in the compound area. Some soldiers said the fighting was between guerrillas and the guard, but others said it was the guard firing at deserters.

As the guard disintegrated, its remaining commanders were reported trying to arrange a peaceful and bloodless formal surrender to the Sandinistas, who brought down the Somoza dictatorship earlier this week after a seven-week civil war.

Francisco Urcuyo, named caretaker president by President Anastasio Somoza when he resigned and left Nicaragua Tuesday, resigned himself Wednesday evening and sped to the airport.

The Sandinistas reported he flew by helicopter to a "point somewhere in Guatemala," but this could not be confirmed. Other Somoza men who had not escaped earlier fled to the airport, too.

Guerrilla columns had been reported headed toward Managua late Wednesday from junta-held Leon, and few if any guard checkpoints were reported still along the highway.

Military trucks carrying hundreds of uniformed and armed troops were spotted rolling out of Managua in the direction of the international airport.

It was not known whether they were trying to fly out of Nicaragua or were headed to a central point to surrender their weapons.

7 killed in Alps climbing disaster

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — The worst single mountain-climbing accident in the French Alps in about 15 years left seven dead, another missing and believed dead and four injured.

It was believed that three French citizens, five Britons and four West Germans were in the three climbing parties involved Wednesday, but police withheld details until families were notified.

Witnesses said a group of climbers, believed to be British, fell during a climb of the Tour Ronde peak, crashing into the other groups lower down as they fell.

All the victims ended in a deep snow-filled crevasse at the foot of the peak,

One of the climbers rescued alive was a young women, found hanging from her rucksack hooked to an ice ledge.

Parolee probe

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal Solicitor-General Allan Lawrence has started a major investigation into the number of serious crimes involving prisoners on parole from jail.

"I am personally concerned about what appears to be a high incidence of offences involving persons released on parole," he said in a telephone interview.

The Edmonton police commission passed a resolution at a July 12 meeting which called for an independent inquiry into the incidence of violent crime committed by parolees.

Lawrence asked for a report on the Edmonton situation after receiving the commission's letter but said the problem is not unique to the city.

"When we look at it, we want to look at the whole scene," he said.

He said he has asked for "various reports on various incidents" and any legislative change to the parole system will depend on his findings.

Norm Koch, president of the Alberta Federation of Police Associations and the Edmonton Police Association supported the commission's call for an inquiry.

He said he supports the principle of parole and that some failures are to be expected. But he said there is a "lack of consideration for the protection of the public in relation to some of the parole releases."

Boy, 15, held

City police arrested a 15-year-old boy after a stakeout of a stolen car found parked on Rock Bay Wednesday night.

A police spokesman said a patrol officer spotted the car about 10:30 p.m. It had been reported stolen earlier from the Colwood area.

Police gave chase after the youth entered the car and caught him when he stopped the car and tried to flee on foot at Bay and Pleasant.

The boy has been charged with dangerous driving and possession of stolen property.

The spokesman said the boy also faces another charge of auto theft in connection with a car stolen in Esquimalt July 10. The vehicle was later found in Colwood.

Cabbies tie up N.Y.

Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — More than a thousand cab drivers, protesting what they called an inadequate fare increase for soaring gasoline prices, created colossal traffic jams in New York City Wednesday by slowing their vehicles to a crawl on major roads during the rush hour.

The drivers blocked bridges, tunnels and highways leading to airports and drove abreast curb-to-curb through the Wall Street financial district.

On the Queensboro Bridge linking Manhattan and Queens over the East River, fist fights erupted between irate motorists late to work and the cabbies, who had climbed out of their vehicles to stop traffic on the roadway.

One cab driver was charged with attempting to run over a policeman in the middle of the bridge as the officer tried to unsnarl traffic. Further downtown on Park Avenue, four other cabbies were arrested after they allegedly pulled over an auto, broke its windows, slashed its tires and then fought with the car's three occupants.

Police estimated that more than a thousand cab drivers took part in the protest which lasted more than six hours.

Mayor Edward Koch was clearly upset at the demonstration which caused tens of thousands of New Yorkers to be late during the morning rush hour.

"I believe such individuals should be suspended," the mayor said as reports of the clogged streets flowed into City Hall.

Koch warned that if another demonstration erupted he would seek to have the drivers brought up before New York City's Taxi and Limousine Commission.

Manacled-Mormon girl arrested again

Fugitive beauty queen Joyce McKinney is in custody more than a year after she jumped bail in Britain, the FBI says. Miss McKinney and fellow fugitive Keith Joseph May of Los Angeles were arrested Wednesday near Asheville,N.C., on charges of making false statements to obtain passports. Miss McKinney, 29, and May, 26, jumped bail in London and fled to Canada under false identities in April 1978, less than a month prior to a scheduled court appearance there on kidnapping charges. Miss McKinney, a former Miss Wyoming-USA, and May were charged in Britain in 1977 with abducting Kirk Anderson, then 21, of Provo, Utah, and imprisoning him in a remote country cottage. Prosecutors said Miss McKinney and May chained the Mormon missionary to a bed and forced him to make love to her.

A Spanish television reporter was locked in a bathroom by a Vatican security guard Wednesday because she refused his orders to climb a ladder onto a television stand. Paloma Gomez Borrero, a veteran Vatican reporter, said a plainclothes guard locked her in a lavatory on the side of St. Peter's Square while Pope John Paul was driven past on his way to a weekly general audience. She said she refused to climb the ladder because she was wearing a skirt and did not want to make a public display in front of 25,000 pilgrims waiting in the square.

That tax-cut man Howard Jarvis is at it again in California. Jarvis, Wednesday, started another tax-slashing initiative campaign; this one to reduce the state income tax by 50 per cent and eliminate business inventory tax. Jarvis and his wife, Estelle, signed the first petitions in front of their home to put the measure on the June, 1980 ballot. He said his earlier Proposition 13, which limited property taxes to one per cent of assessed value, had triggered a tremendous increase in California's economy and predicted that this measure would have the same kind of effect. Jarvis said 350,000 to 500,000 new jobs had been created in California since Proposition 13 was passed in June, 1978.

For the second year, President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines has missed a $500,000 payment toward a $1.5-million fund his wife promised for the study of East Asian and Pacific affairs at Tufts University, in Medord, Mass. "We haven't received any of the capital payments," said Dean Theodore Eliot of the university's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.

Entertainer John Davidson should stick to lyrics and avoid antagonizing big animals. He's in an Avalon, Calif., hospital on Santa Catalina Island with a torn rib cartiledge and a blood clot following a run-in with a buffalo at the summer camp he runs for aspiring singers. Says Davidson's agent, Sandy Brokaw, "He made a mistake and toyed with the buffalo and the buffalo charged him, picked him up with its horns and threw him."

And finally: First came dire warnings of deafness for those bound to boogie amid the thunder of disco music. Then came warnings equally dire of blindness for eyes assaulted by disco laser lights. Now from a Baltimore doctor comes a new malady — "disco felon." Dr. Frederick Walker says physicians at Johns Hopkins University Hospital recently treated a 17-year-old girl for a severely infected fingertip — a felon — the result of too much finger-snapping on the dance floor. The report was published somewhat tongue-in-cheek in the New England Journal of Medicine in Boston, but Walker says "there clearly is an association ... The felon is a fairly common problem. We see a million of them."

Now, miracle baby number two

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Doctors are calling David Lee Patterson a "miracle baby."

David, who weighed six pounds, four ounces, was developed outside his mother's womb. Doctors at North Carolina Memorial Hospital say the live birth of such a baby is "too rare to estimate scientifically."

The baby was born Wednesday to Charles and Shirley Patterson of Burlington. The mother and child were reported doing well.

It was the second such birth in the United States in less than three months. Doctors attending the first mother said only about 50 births outside the womb have been recorded in medical literature.

Dr. Linn Hatley, chief resident of obstetrics and gynecology at the Chapel Hill hospital, said Mrs. Patterson, 32, was transferred there from a Burlington hospital Tuesday night, suffering pre-natal complications.

"The abdomen felt unusual," Ms. Hatley said. "We couldn't outline the uterus, but we thought we could feel parts of the baby better than we usually can."

She said tests confirmed what she suspected — the baby was not in the uterus. Doctors decided on immediate surgery.

"When we opened the abdomen, the first thing we saw was the placenta," Ms. Hatley. "Then I found the baby's feet, and the baby started kicking and screaming."

She said physicians were elated that the baby was alive.

Patterson said his wife had a difficult pregnancy.

"We talked with a lot of people and I knew her pregnancy was not like anyone else's," said Patterson, a father for the first time in his 13-year marriage. "Something wasn't just right, but we couldn't figure out what was wrong."

On April 25, Miracle Stacy Sickles was delivered by caesarian section in St. Mary's Hospital at Grand Junction, Colo., after developing in her mother's abdomen.

Born 12 weeks premature, Miracle has since gone home and is doing well.

Queen heading for the front line of guerrilla war

LONDON (AP) — The Queen flew from London today to start a four-country African tour that will end in Zambia, on the front line of a conflict in Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

The 16-day tour went ahead as scheduled after the 53-year-old monarch expressed her "firm intention" to go despite fears for her safety expressed by British politicians and newspapers.

But British security officials said the Queen will be in no more danger — probably less — than in strife-torn Northern Ireland, where Britain mounted what was probably its biggest peacetime security operation for the Queen's visit in 1977.

Both Zambian-based guerrilla chief Joshua Nkomo and Bishop Abel Muzorewa, black prime minister of Zimbabwe Rhodesia, have pledged to hold off border incursions and reprisals during the Queen's week-long stay in Zambia, ending Aug. 4.

The Queen is due to open in Zambia the biennial meeting of the prime ministers of the Commonwealth.

Bias accusation at nuclear hearing

SEATTLE (AP) — An attempt by an anti-nuclear group to unseat the chairman of a three-member atomic safety and licensing board which is hearing testimony on proposed nuclear power plants on the Skagit River failed Wednesday.

Eric Stachon, representing an anti-nuclear group called Forelaws on Board, from Boring, Ore., made a motion to disqualify board chairman Valentine Deale on Tuesday, citing "prejudicial remarks" against three Washington state Indian tribes.

The tribes were denied an opportunity to intervene in the board's hearing on Puget Sound Power and Light Co.'s two proposed plants at Sedro Woolley, about 80 kilometres south of the Vancouver area.

In earlier testimony, an opponent to the power plants said information on an earthquake in the area Jan. 6 was not included in material available to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Jeffrey Margolis said during a hearing Tuesday that a letter reporting the earthquake was omitted from Geological Survey-published data available to the commission.

The letter, signed by W.A. Radlinski, acting director of the survey, stated that "since it (the earthquake) was small and reported to have been felt by a very few persons, it was not included in the data sent to the Geological Survey for publication."

The quake was 3.4 on the Richter scale.

Margolis said two previous earthquakes of similar magnitude had been reported routinely in 1977.

Looking at amalgamation

The word "amalgamation" sparks such an emotional response in the Greater Victoria area that politicians rarely dare mention it any more.

A citizens' committee commissioned a detailed report on the subject a year or so ago, but everyone hastily hid the study under piles of old documents and pretended it didn't exist.

Despite the aversion to the word, some recent events have led some local politicians and residents closer to the brink of considering a greater unity among the Victoria area's municipalities.

A couple of the situations involve Saanich, a municipality beset with problems of development, taxes and transportation.

Saanich, basically a bedroom community, is trying desperately to relieve tax pressure on homeowners by encouraging the establishment of commercial and industrial developments to enlarge the tax base. Other municipalities are unhappy about Saanich's expansion plans. They say that big shopping centres in Saanich would affect business in the downtown core and other shopping areas, that a big new industrial park in Saanich would hurt the existing park in Central Saanich.

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier replies, not unreasonably, that Saanich would be pleased to abandon the projects if the other municipalities would guarantee to make up the potential loss in tax revenue. It isn't fair, he says, to have Saanich homeowners forced to pay higher taxes than homeowners in other municipalities because Saanich isn't allowed industrial or commercial developments to enrich the tax base.

One result of this debate is that the regional district — that odd creature that displays all the weaknesses of amalgamation and none of its strengths — is now preparing to study the concept of revenue-sharing. In effect, the regional board is trying to find a formula through which the "have" areas would give some money each year to the "have-nots," presumably so that competition for industrial and commercial land could cease.

As the board is sure to discover, it won't be that simple. Certain demands would be attached to any tax dollar donation from one municipality. Some of those demands would doubtless involve regional control over the planning process. The "haves" would insist on the power to prevent the recipients of revenue-sharing from building shopping centres and industrial parks.

That sort of measure by itself would come close to the fundamentals of amalgamation. But even more stringent controls would probably be demanded by the "have" municipalities. They would likely want some say over how the "have-nots" spend the money generated by revenue-sharing. For instance, Victoria would be most unhappy about giving thousands of dollars to Saanich, only to find Saanich spending it on upgrading facilities or other projects that Victoria itself cannot afford.

Greater unity in labor negotiations would also be required. The "haves" would be rightly furious if their tax money were used by the "have-nots" to pay higher wages than the "haves" are paying or are willing to pay their employees.

And if a regional government or super-government has control over how municipalities spend their money, what developments they allow and what they pay their employees, then surely amalgamation is all but complete.

The regional development problem is not the only recent example of the need for unity. A 1978 B.C. police commission study — also hastily buried by everyone in Greater Victoria — suggested that a unified police force would be the most logical way to handle the financial and administrative problems posed by the myriad of individual municipal police departments and RCMP detachments operating in the region.

It somehow seems ridiculous that Saanich now is implementing a community-based policing program much desired by many residents of Victoria, while the Victoria police force is pointing out that it can barely keep up with the growing crime problem because so many people from other municipalities congregate in the downtown core. The officers say that the Victoria force is in effect trying to police a population of 220,000 with the resources for a city of 60,000.

Similar comments could be made about fire services, roads and parks.

Any move towards amalgamation could not be undertaken lightly or hastily. It would require a long period of study, much input from the public, and much discussion from the staff and politicians of the individual municipalities. The study should probably be undertaken by the provincial municipal affairs ministry to ensure its impartiality.

It should include a detailed look at the financial costs and benefits of amalgamation, at the differences in standards of service that would have to be accommodated, and at the various municipalities and unorganized territories that might be included. If after that examination, amalgamation still seems like a feasible idea, the study should also include details for a possible plan of implementation.

Recent events have shown it is none too soon for such a study to begin.

RICHARD GWYN

No 'third option' for trade

OTTAWA — U.S. of A., we're on our way. As a result of the just completed international trade neogtiations, the U.S. will reduce its tariffs on Canadian industrial goods by an average of 40 per cent. The comparable cuts by the nine countries of the European Economic Community and by Japan are only 26 per cent and 31 per cent respectively.

Since the lower the tariffs the greater the trade, our exports to the U.S. (to whom, in exchange, we cut our tariffs by 40 per cent) will grow faster than will our exports to Europe or to Japan. Our north-south ties will tighten; our anchor lines to east and west will fray.

At a press conference last week, Economic Development Minister Robert de Cotret floated about inside a fog of words trying not to notice the obvious — which is that the "third option" policy of trying to reduce our dependence upon the U.S. by snuggling up closer to other countries, not only "isn't working," as Finance Minister John Crosbie remarked recently, but can't work.

Noble goal

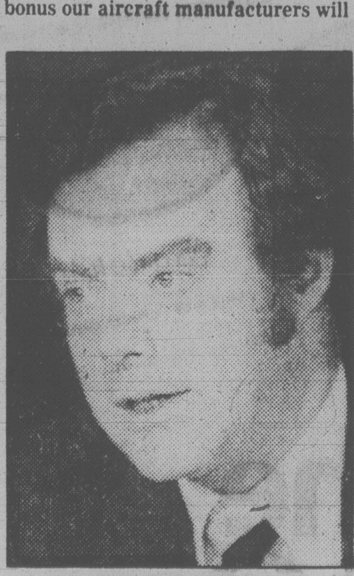
"We will not restrict our trade opportunities to one area . . . [but] will seek out opportunities everywhere," said de Cotret.

A noble goal, except that we did the exact opposite during the trade talks. Whenever we had a choice, we negotiated tariffs deals that favored the north-south flow rather than the east-west one. These choices, in fact, involved no choice at all — the U.S. market absorbs 70 per cent of all our exports, and 83 per cent of our manufactured exports.

As a result, although we got nowhere on agriculture and fish with the Europeans, or on metals with Japan, we got out of the U.S. the most comprehensive trade pact between any of the 98 countries involved in the talks. Once the tariff cuts are implemented, 80 per cent of Canada-U.S. trade will be duty-free.

Another illustration of where we are headed, whether we like it or not, is Air Canada's decision this week to buy $1 billion worth of Boeing 767s rather than the rival European Airbus. Third optioneer De Montigny Marchand, a top civil servant now in Paris on a mission to forge new links with Europe, urged the cabinet to order Air Canada to buy the Airbus to signal Europe that we really are serious about transatlantic ties.

The truth is that, where the third option comes at a cost, we aren't serious about it. The Boeing 767 better suits Air Canada's needs, and as a bonus our aircraft manufacturers will have a chance at subcontracts. Cabinet thus authorized Air Canada to buy the 767.



ROBERT de COTRET
. . . in a fog of words

In an interview with Prime Minister Joe Clark at the close of the Tokyo summit, I asked him about Crosbie's proposal for a national debate on a possible Canada-U.S. free trade deal. Clark replies that he favors such a debate because, "we are mature enough now as a country that we can look objectively at exactly what our interests are in relation to the U.S."

Indeed, we have no choice but to be mature enough to begin the debate soon. The world over, countries are clustering into trading blocks, leaving us as almost the only developed country without free access to a market of at least 100 million.

In such a debate, the first question to be asked, which oddly has never been posed before, is whether the U.S. wants us. It does today want our oil and gas, and tomorrow probably will want our water; just about everything else in Canada, the U.S. already has, or can get.

Other questions that come to mind:

☐ A U.S.-Canada free trade deal amounts to — you may have heard it before — "sovereignty-association." Could we remain sovereign if the association encompassed as with the European Community, not just trade but the free movement of labor and capital?

More to Asia

☐ Would three make for a more comfortable crowd? A U.S. Senate subcommittee now is holding public hearings into possible new trade arrangements — energy of course is the spur — between Canada, the U.S. and Mexico.

☐ Should we look west, to the east? This year or next we'll pass an historic milestone. For the first time, we'll sell more to Asia than to Europe. One option, proposed by Japan, is for a Pacific Economic Community, encompassing North America, Australia and Southeast Asia, which, from Japan to Taiwan to Singapore to Indonesia, is now the cradle of the world's fastest-growing economies.

Absent from these alternatives is Western Europe. Our transatlantic ties of sentiment, culture, history, shared values and common political systems, are indissoluble. Yet trade now makes the world turn. Our trade with Europe, West Germany excepted, has ceased to grow.

In the end, we have two options. To decide ourselves which way we want to go, or to end up going all the way with the U.S.A. anyway. There isn't any third option.

No humanitarians

It comes as a shock to realize that some of our elected officials, two MLAs and an alderman, seem to be men of little imagination lacking true humanitarian instincts. I refer to the quotes in the Times July 14 (Comox Willing to Take Refugees), purported to be by Brian Smith, Charles Barber and Geoff Vantreight regarding bringing large numbers of Southeast Asian refugees to a camp on Vancouver Island for further allocation to more permanent destinations.

Of course adoption immediately into Canadian families would be the most preferred solution as Barber suggests, but while waiting for this to happen, people in Southeast Asia are dying most horrible deaths. This would not happen to them while waiting in well-run camps in Canada.

Smith suggests that a camp in Canada might not be any better than a camp in Hong Kong or Singapore. It would seem he really has no idea what conditions in Southeast Asia are really like especially with monsoon rains and typhoons. Mr. Vantreight seems only concerned with the unemployment situation in Canada and the legality of the refugees' status.

I feel sure that these three officials have not really thought how their statements would read in print. I do not believe that they are a true reflection of their opinions.

I hope that on thinking things over that they will agree that setting up camps in Canada, which unlike Hong Kong and Singapore has unlimited space, is probably the most humane and efficient way to mitigate suffering and prevent loss of life. All our energies and expertise should be channelled to help the Government of Canada make a major contribution immediately towards helping the unfortunate "boat people." — Sheila Anderson, 2564 Maynard Street.

Change the act

I wish to bring to your attention a very unfair procedure of the government in the action towards some owners of leasehold apartment properties. In short they have made fish of some and fowl of others, in regard to the homeowner grant.

Until recently all leasehold owners have been given to understand that the grant would be forthcoming. For the years 1977 and 1978 it was paid. Then this year it was discovered that no payment is to be received and that the act authorizing this rebate was worded in such a way that made it retroactive and only those who had purchased before December, 1977 would be entitled to the rebate. People who purchased prior to December, 1977 would get the grant and the man next door or across the hall who purchased after that date would not.

Although the government has been asked to remove this unfair deadline and treat all owners the same, they have so far refused the greater proportion of whom are elderly and on fixed incomes.

Charles Barber has taken a very firm stand in favor of the act being changed to include all leasehold properties, and he is to be commended for his efforts on our behalf.

I would recommend very strongly that the government, and particularly our premier take another look at this Act and correct it immediately. — Louis Lafon, 409-964 Heywood Avenue.

Leaseholders

On July 10, our government cut off the homeowner grant for new owners in leasehold apartments.

As an owner in a leasehold apartment and as a representative of a 211-suite apartment building in Victoria, I protest this callous, arbitrary withdrawal of owners' rights.

The effect on our property values and the extra burden imposed by this crippling blow to many a homeowner's budget gives us cause to reflect on the integrity of the present government.

We ask that those people who would support us, please write to Premier Bennett without delay. This withdrawal of the homeowner grant may very well spread to include your condominium or house in the future. — Orchard House Leaseholders' Association, 647 Michigan Street.

Wouldn't be fair

In view of the fact the Capital Regional Board has seen fit to pursue the proposal for a septic tank waste dump at Macaulay Point over the objections of Esquimalt council, I wish to bring to your attention the following points:

The first choice for the site was in View Royal but because it required rezoning, a public hearing had to be held. I'm sure the board members are well aware that residents' objections of View Royal were not so much directed at rezoning but at the intended use of the property. I'm sure the board is also aware the present proposal is on DND property and is not subject to zoning bylaws and therefore a public hearing would not be a legal requirement.

Although a public hearing is not legallly required, I feel nevertheless that in the interests of fairness, Esquimalt residents should be given the opportunity to present their views on the latest proposal. With this in mind I respectfully suggest that before the CRB enters into any discussions with federal authorities that a public meeting be called by the board at the earliest opportunity.

I would also ask the board to bear in mind that there are processes which would turn the effluent into fertilizer or topsoil. This is done in the U.S. and even in other parts of B.C. While it is not envisaged at this time that all the sewage of the CRD could be channeled into such a plant, the amount of effluent presently being trucked from septic tanks could well fit into such a plan. With the present prices of topsoil and fertilizer in this area it is just possible such a plan could be economically viable. — Ald. Colin Blair, Esquimalt.

RVs need space

I was very interested in the discussion which took place recently on the possibility of locating an overnight trailer park in Victoria. Apparently Ernie Townsend, president of the Trailer Park Association, objected strongly to the proposal and referred to those RV (recreational vehicle) enthusiasts who would use the facilities as "cheapies."

I disagree with Mr. Townsend. Having recently completed a 20,000 mile trip around North America I believe I can contribute to Mr. Townsend's education on the subject.

During the 12 months that my friends and I were on the road, our expenses averaged close to $1,000 per month — for sightseeing, trips around the cities, department stores, gift shops, gas, food and yes, even campsites. However, on many occasions we did enjoy free overnight stops provided in some cases by the city fathers.

We took a bus tour of the city to orient ourselves, and to decide which of the attractions we wished to see on subsequent days. Of course there were always new and different department stores to attract our wives, and I would defy Mr. Townsend's ability to prevent them from freely exchanging cash for merchandise in these emporiums. While the ladies were spending all the money we hadn't figured on spending, the men would be wandering around hardware stores. Have you ever noticed how hardware stores in other distant cities always have the gadgets one cannot find at home?

On the question "is a downtown RV location needed?" I would suggest a check on the number of these vehicles arriving at the three ferry terminals, Swartz Bay, Sidney and Victoria, all of which feed traffic into the city. A conservative estimate would be 300 to 400 per day at this time of the year and I am sure that many of them would stay in Victoria longer if the type of accommodation under discussion was available.

Victoria is one of the most beautiful cities on the North American continent. It also enjoys a very advantageous position on the tip of the island. From my own experience, however, I think that somehow we fall short in our appreciation of all visiting tourists. Perhaps the aforementioned project would rectify that problem as far as the RV tourist is concerned. — Art Casson, 895 Walfred Road.

Thanks, Jaycees

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce Jaycees for their cheerful interest in, and support of, Glendale Lodge's annual Fair Day, which was held on July 6 this year.

Glendale Lodge is a 345-bed residential facility for the mentally and physically handicapped. Every year, a country fair is organized for the residents by the staff. Various community groups are invited to participate in the activities.

The Victoria Jaycees, under the vice-presidency of Mr. Brett Brockenborough, were one of the groups who offered their time, energy and enthusiasm in assisting with the acquisition of food for the fair, as well as with its distribution.

We at Glendale appreciate the Jaycees' outstanding service to our community of the mentally and physically handicapped and hope that others will recognize their dedicated involvement in helping other people. — Debbie Mar, Co-ordinator of Volunteers, Glendale Lodge.

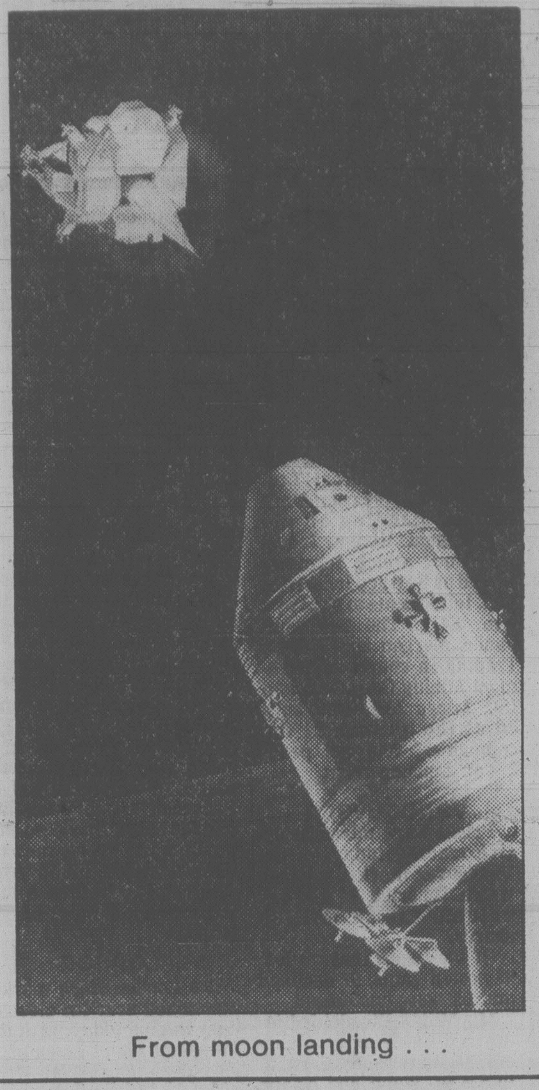
The space race is over



From moon landing . . .

By HAROLD JACKSON

Manchester Guardian

WASHINGTON — Last week's translation of the largest object ever put into orbit into a pile of earthbound junk is as neat a symbol as you're likely to find of the state of America's space program. The descent of Skylab virtually coincided with the tenth anniversary of the first walk on the moon and there could hardly be a greater contrast in the climate surrounding the two events.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which could once dip its hand into the public purse more or less at will, is now having to fight for every penny. All sense of excitement has gone and so has the competitive edge with the Soviet Union (The fact that there are now two Russian cosmonauts circling the globe and that they have been doing so since Feb. 25 is in little danger of stealing the headlines). The space race has run its course and NASA is now reduced to a dawdle.

The fall of Skylab, in fact, is in part a product of this changed climate. Had NASA been able to maintain the pace of its development of the Space Shuttle it might have been possible to send up astronauts to put the laboratory into a higher orbit when unexpected sunspot activity slowed it down. But that program has been dogged with every sort of delay and misfortune and runs the risk of boring everyone silly, not least the congressmen who must vote the funds for it.

To the casual eye, NASA's budget has once more climbed to the heights it reached at its peak in the mid-sixties. The appropriation this year is $4.4 billion and next year's has been set at $4.6 billion — the same money it was getting in 1966. But inflation since then means that the budget has really been reduced by half.

The agency has just announced yet another postponement in the flight schedule for the Space Shuttle and it now looks as if it will not get airborne for another year at the earliest. The project has been plagued with technical problems to the point where NASA has now introduced a penalty clause into its contract with the firm constructing the vehicle, and NASA officials who gave evidence to Congress to get more money said they were "nervous" about being able to pay the bills for a launching even then.

Meanwhile, they have been running up their telephone bill getting in touch with the 70 organizations around the world who had booked space on the shuttle. NASA has already been paid $60 millions in advance and may now have to refund some of the cash. Various commercial satellites, for example, will now have to be launched by rocket, as will two communications satellites planned by the Canadians and the Indians. That will come rather dearer than if they had gone into orbit from the reusable shuttle vehicle.

The recent history of the shuttle — which looks a bit like an overstuffed MiG-18 — includes an engine exploding during tests, a fire and explosion in the oxygen system, and the unnerving loss during a test flight of the heat-resistent tiles designed to protect it on re-entry into the earth's atmosphere. If NASA is to meet its deadline for the launch, it needs to have these tiles placed on the vehicle at the rate of about 500 a week: so far the most it has managed is 300.

The Pentagon has been paying about a sixth of the costs of developing the vehicle in the expectation that it will be used to launch military surveillance satellites. But, with that now turned into a major political issue because of the SALT treaty, there is not much inclination to hang around while NASA gets its act together. So even that support may be waning.

There have been various efforts in Congress recently to get more funds for the space program, but they have not been particularly well-received and are now dormant. There was enough resistance from tax-conscious citizens in any case, but the energy crisis is likely to kill any further efforts. If funds are to be earmarked for any high technology it will be to produce something likely to get OPEC off the United States' backs. There are already calls for a crash program for fuels comparable to Kennedy's fanfare for a man on the moon.

The last time anyone asked the American public their views, the largest single number felt that a one-third reduction in the space program would be no loss at all and most of the others couldn't get very worked up about it. That was two years ago. If the same question were asked again today the results would probably be much as they were in 1961 — at the height of the space fever. Even then, 58 per cent of those asked were opposed to spending the money on the moon landing.

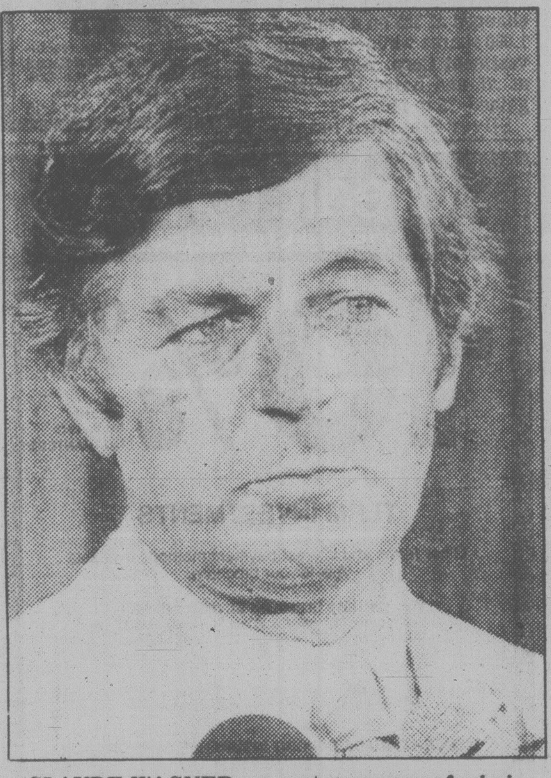
Wagner: The haughty loner who almost made it to top



CLAUDE WAGNER . . . a strong sense of mission

By WILLIAM JOHNSON

QUEBEC — Claude Wagner died last week and the obituaries in the Quebec press were ambivalent. He came so close — 65 votes — to being today's prime minister. Everyone recognizes in him an important figure of his age, and yet most professional commentators feel that the man was flawed. He was nearly a great man, nearly leader of the Quebec provincial Liberals, nearly leader of the federal Tories, he might have been leader of the Social Credit Party, or of the Union Nationale. With Claude Wagner, friends and enemies sensed not only the man as he was but the man as he might have been — some feared, some revered the man in him he almost was.

With Claude Wagner, few people could feel they really knew him. You always sensed the mystery that lay within the public man.

Claude was the eternal outsider. His father was an immigrant from Bavaria who married a French-Canadian woman. He was a musician and played the violin in theatres in the days of the silent films. But the talkies in the Thirties put him out of work, and the musician found work as a blue-collar worker in a Drummondville textile factory.

I remember in 1972 interviewing Wagner, the recently recruited Quebec star of the Progessive Conservative Party. When he told me of his father working with his hands I felt that the son had been profoundly humiliated for his father.

After he was elected to the Quebec Legislature, he was twitted by Union Nationale members, including Daniel Johnson, about being Jewish. Was his father Jewish? Le Soleil says so. Claude Wagner never mentioned it during that series of interviews I had with him in 1972, when we went through his antecedents and his childhood.

I suspect that Claude, the son of an immigrant German violin-player by the name of Wagner, felt set off from his peers in Drummondville, especially since the family obviously never accepted the fall in social status that put the father to work in a factory. Claude went to boarding school at a time when few children of blue-collar parents attended private schools. There, too, he must have felt the outsider, proudly sensitive about his family's humble fortune in the class-conscious Quebec of 1940.

This may explain his populism, his anger toward establishments, which he showed as a Crown prosecutor, as a judge, as a minister of justice in Quebec and, later, as a candidate for the Liberal and Progressive Conservative leaderships.

He was never a party man, always a lone wolf, proud, suspicious, mistrustful of his fellow team members, unalterably aloof. He never became, anywhere, one of the boys. He won fame and a personal following for outspoken public statements. Jean Lesage brought him into his cabinet from the Bench — but politics never quite took out of him the moralistic judge denouncing the "untouchables" behind the petty criminals. One sensed a rigidity in him that made some observers as well as colleagues fear a latent streak of authoritarianism.

In the tense times of the mid-Quiet Revolution he became more a symbol than a man. He was blamed for ordering "Big Bertha," the huge anti-riot machine that was ordered before he became solicitor-general. (Last week, Le Soleil wrote in its obituary that the armored vehicle was built "at the order of Claude Wagner.") He took the rap for police brutality against separatist demonstrators when Queen Elizabeth visited Quebec in 1964 and "Saturday of the truncheons" became part of Quebec legend. He had been elected to the legislature only five days before and later told me that he had not been responsible for planning the security. I believe him, but history will not.

The man, a populist, wore dark pinstripe suits and was acutely uncomfortable when speaking to common people. He always tried to keep his distance, his noble platform posture, even in intimate circumstances. I recall travelling with him, seatmates, from Toronto to Montreal, then to Fredericton, then by car to Saint John, during the 1976 leadership convention. His attempt to maintain aloof hauteur during all those hours would have been comic, if it had not suggested that he clung to a sense of personal mission that kept him from ever letting down his persona, especially with a journalist.

His experience of the world at large was slight — he had never lived abroad. He was confused and like a child about such ordinary things as taking planes. The breadth of his reading, of his culture, was small compared to many of his competitors. Yet he was sustained by a belief in the destiny of Claude Wagner.

He came so close to winning, at last, acceptance at the top, to having the country accept his sense of mission. So close. Almost a tragic figure.

A matter of delicacy

Russell Baker

The news from China is that Bob Hope was there and the Chinese didn't recognize him. The news, of course, is wrong, and lest Bob become too depressed by it, I remind him that the same thing happened during my own visit to Yugoslavia in 1966.

After several days of sitting around on Belgrade park benches looking famous, I was struck by the fact that not a single Yugoslav approached to pound my back or demand my signature. The explanation came from my hotel clerk after I threatened to depart immediately for Athens to be photographed in the footprints of Socrates.

"Yugoslavs" he pointed out, "pride themselves on their excellent good manners. Honored though we are to have you among us, we would no more think of besieging you for autographs and stripping off your necktie and socks for souvenirs than we would think of telling Marshal Tito to go fly a kite."

The Chinese civilization, being even older than Yugoslavia's, is even more refined. Though Bob Hope may be a household name throughout the People's Republic, any Chinese who betrayed recognition of the famous comedian would be committing a gross breach of courtesy.

In fact, if Bob reflects a moment on his own natural good manners, he will see that there is nothing either insulting or untoward in the pointed delicacy with which the Chinese treated him.

If Queen Elizabeth were strolling through Grand Central Station, would Bob drop everything and accost her with cries of "hey, Queen, I recognize you!" And, "how about autographing my golf cap?"?

Of course not. Neither would any other person of cultivated sensibility. Why expect less decorum of the Chinese?

In my experience, even Americans are not without restraint when the privacy of famous persons is vulnerable. Some years ago I passed through a London hotel lobby in which Gary Cooper was being interviewed by a dozen gossip mongers.

Cooper caught my eye. There was the briefest flicker of recognition, but Cooper squelched it, gentleman that he was. Nor did he bear down on me, clap my back, bawl that he intended to tell his wife he'd seen me in the flesh, or ask me to sign his favorite horse.

Here was courtesy of a delicacy seldom found outside China. I appreciated it. Gary Cooper, I said to myself, knows how the civilized man should conduct himself when greatness accidentally falls into his line of vision.

I confess that my own behavior in such circumstances had not always been the best. Once, seeing Franklin Roosevelt motor past my high school campus, I had stared unabashedly. I had once badgered Pooch Puccinelli for his autograph, after Pooch had distinguished himself by hitting five home runs in a single game for the Triple A team representing my hometown.

A few days later, while cutting his toe nails with a razor, Pooch accidentally sliced the toe so badly he was unable to play ball for a week. I believe his razor hand was shaken by thought of the brutal coarseness and ill-manners rampant among his worshipping masses.

Sometime after that I resolved to follow the Chinese lead in conduct toward life's admirable people. A few years ago this mastery of courtesy paid off when I saw a man resembling Papa Gambino get out of a car in New York. Papa was very high in the Mafia at the time. In another time I would have rushed up and asked, "are you Papa Gambino or are you just nobody?"

Now, however, I was able to let the man pass without inquiry. If it was Papa Gambino, he was not visibly pained by my failure to recognize him. At least there was nothing in the papers about Papa Gambino's walking around town and not being recognized by a single New Yorker.

I thought of this man's natural ease when Bob Hope appeared on television the other day not being recognized in a Peking street. Instead of being grateful for the refined manners of the Chinese, Bob seemed uneasy.

He was chatting with another touring American, the satirist, Art Buchwald, who was not being mobbed either. A few Chinese did stand curiously in the background managing by superhuman effort to restrain themselves from showing the most passionate interest in the two Americans.

The Chinese's only interest, said Bob, was in the television cameras. What a misunderstanding of Chinese civilization. To think that the Chinese are more interested in the spectacle of an NBC camera crew than in the cream of American jest.

It reminds me of the time Elizabeth Taylor kept staring at me in a restaurant. I assumed at the time she was less interested in me than in my soup bowl, in which my necktie was immersed up to the label.

Such is the insensitivity we celebrities show in return for the gentle good manners of our admirers.

FOTOPRINT
INSTANT PRINTING

Well, folks, the special news this time is about our sparkling new collator, another major advance in printing services at Foto-print! Last issue we described how important specialization has become in the printing industry, and how our own experience and facilities for fast print orders has created significant savings to our customers, through high-volume efficiency. In this issue, we introduce you to our 1600 System duplicator, and offer some customer commentary!

The 1600 Offset Total Copy System

At the Speed of Paper....

What's faster than a photocopier, prints on any kind of colour of bond or pre-printed letterhead stock, and does it all at less cost than other duplicating systems from 25 copies up? We're talking about our 1600 System offset duplicator — the most economical, high-speed printing system on the Island! "I've never seen anything like it," comments the sales manager of a major Victoria wholesale outlet. "I sent down camera-ready copy for a four-page price list, and our secretary was able to come right back with 500 completed sets!" A partner in a large local consulting firm makes the 1600 System play a regular role in office management and proposals: "We have a relatively good photocopier, but we'd be wasting both time and money to attempt to match Foto-print's prices and turn-around, especially on reports." A direct sales executive notes: "It's very important that our covering letters appear crisp and freshly typed. Our photocopier simply can't deliver that impression, and we save money running them on the high-speed printer."

Not only leading businesses in Victoria have discovered the benefits of our 1600 System. Many vocational and academic graduates have had their resumes printed on first-class stock to achieve a truly professional presentation of their skills.

Special Announcement

We are pleased to announce that we have installed a fully automated collating system. If you or your office staff have ever had to hand-sort copies you'll enjoy being able to have this formerly tedious task done for you in minutes! Newsletters, multi-page reports, price lists — any of these complex jobs can now be completely printed, collated, and stitched with our unprecedented start-to-finish facilities. Bring your next project in and see another reason why Foto-print is the Island's only full-service instant printing specialist. P.S. If you already have printed material we can collate it, too!

How to save 9%, maybe

Printing is considered a manufacturing operation and is subject to federal manufacturing tax, as well as the usual provincial tax. However, there are many kinds of printed matter for which you may be able to obtain an exemption from the federal tax. Typical items may include newsletters or newspapers with a date and issue number, containing articles of general interest and not exceeding 70% advertising; magazines issued at least four times per year; certain college and school materials, etc. Eligibility has to be ruled on each individual item or its proposed format, by the Revenue Canada District Excise Office, Rm 403, Quadra Centre, 3960 Quadra St., Victoria, V8X 4A3. To obtain a ruling, simply mail a copy of your printed item (or a comprehensive outline of proposed publication) to the office, together with details about frequency of issue, percentage of ad space if any, and the name and address of your printer. In a few days, at no cost, the office will return your material with a letter indicating its status. As a courtesy a copy will be sent to your printer, however it is your responsibility to show the printer your letter of exemption or he must charge the tax. A printer can later credit you if you bring in an exemption notice after the work has been billed. Check it out!

We've Moved!

We are happy to announce our new spacious premises and thank our many customers who have made our growth possible.

New York

The stock market was mixed today amid continuing apprehension over the shake-up of the Carter administration and another signal that the economy is slowing down. But advances held a 7-6 edge over declines on the New York Stock Exchange. Analysts reported continued worried about the resignations submitted by President Carter's cabinet and top aides. Those worries pushed the stock market down along a broad front Wednesday before a late rally erased most of the losses.

London

The London stock market was mixed near the close of light trading today, with the Financial Times index of 30 industrials closing at 471.9, off 0.3. Industrials were mixed while oils firmed and mines eased. Canadian shares declined.

Company reports

Pine Point

Pine Point Mines Ltd. announced net earnings for the six months ended June 30 of $22.7 million or $5.03 a share, compared with $3.2 million or 71 cents a share in the same period last year.

Sales in the first six months of 1979 were $72.8 million, up from $36 million in 1978.

Baton

Baton Broadcasting Inc. reported profits of $7,432,137 or $1.08 a share for the nine months ending May 31, up from $6,179,633 or 89.6 cents a share earned a year ago.

Chairman Douglas Bassett said revenue from sales of air time increased almost 20 per cent in the period while revenue from the company's productions fell about five per cent.

Baton owns CFTO-TV in Toronto, CFQC Broadcasting in Saskatoon, CFGO Radio in Ottawa, CKLW Radio in Windsor, Ont. and a number of television and film production companies.

Abitibi

Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. said profits in the first six months rose to $55.3 million or $2.72 a share, up 73 per cent from the $31.9 million or $1.60 a share earned in the same period last year.

The company said the six-month figure and second-quarter earnings of $1.66 a share were record-high profits.

Abitibi, whose major market is the U.S., said the devalued Canadian dollar was a major boost to the higher earnings.

The outlook for the second half of the year is "somewhat clouded because of the uncertain economic climate in the U.S.," but demand for paper products remains strong, said the company.

RCA Corp.

Slumping NBC Television earnings and a "substantial loss" at RCA Records sharply trimmed RCA Corp.'s second-quarter profits.

RCA said that without a $23-million profit from its $209-million sale of RCA Alaska Communications Inc. to Pacific Power and Light Co., its second-quarter earnings would have been "20 per cent below those of the 1978 second quarter."

The electronics, broadcasting, publishing and car-rental company said it earned $85.6 million, or $1.13 a share, in the quarter, 9.3 per cent higher than last year's $78.3 million, or $1.02 a share. Revenues climbed to $1.89 billion from $1.61 billion.

"Although NBC revenues continued to climb with strong advertiser demand for time, earnings fell as a result of lower ratings and heavy program costs," the company said. NBC ranks third in network ratings, behind CBS and ABC.

RCA did not disclose the size of NBC profits or the record division's losses.

Price Co.

Price Co. Ltd. of Quebec announced its net profits for the first six months of 1979 reached $24.8 million or $2.46 per common share, compared to $10.5 million or $1.05 a share for the same period in 1978.

Price, a subsidiary of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. of Toronto, said the low value of the Canadian dollar led to extra profits of $12.9 million in the first half of 1979, compared to $8.1 million a year earlier. There were no extraordinary items to report.

Net sales reached $236.3 million, up 7.4 per cent from a year earlier.

Price said its newsprint and uncoated groundwood paper mills worked at full capacity, and its order books are full. Demand for lumber was also strong, but may fall later this year because of a drop in U.S. construction starts.

Fraser Inc.

Fraser Inc. reported the second quarter saw a continuing upward trend in shipments and sales revenue and net earnings at a pace that exceeded the record first quarter.

Second-quarter net earnings were $7,046,000 or $1 a share, on sales of $79,927,000, compared with $5,112,000, or 73 cents a share, on sales of $65,081,000 for the same period of 1978.

For the six months, net earnings totalled $13,863,000, or $1.97 a share, against $10,049,000, or $1.43 a share, last year.

Sales, at $158,568,000 were 27 per cent over last year. This year's earnings include foreign exchange of 59 cents a share in the second quarter and $1.17 for the six months, compared with 29 cents and 63 cents, respectively in 1978.

A news release from the big paper-maker said excellent results achieved to date in 1979 reflect a strong demand for all product lines and the substantual premium value of the U.S. dollar.

Invermere ski town given nod

CALGARY (CP) — A Calgary-based development company has been given approval by the British Columbia government to develop a $140-million ski resort community near Invermere.

Cascade Development Corp. Ltd. announced its plans for the project in January but its go-ahead had been delayed pending approval by the government.

Cascade's plans involve turning the modest Panorama ski centre into a major Aspen-type year-round resort community.

Cascade economist William Lloyd said construction could begin by the end of this month. The first phase will include 184 condominiums, 15 kilometres of cross-country and hiking trails, four tennis courts and the sewage plant.

Could cost $12,000 to sponsor family

ment expenses of the refugee and his family for the first 12 months in Canada.

"I doubt if many voluntary organizations realize what may be involved."

Elliot said that because of the anticipated expenses, the government has insisted sponsors must be made up of groups of five individuals or more.

"We don't want to get well-meaning persons who may find themselves short of cash," he said.

So far the local immigration office has processed nine applications for sponsors and about the same number are on the verge of being completed.

Some of that pressure will be relieved with the establishment in Victoria of a special information office for potential sponsors, announced by Saanich Ald. John Mika today.

Mika said he met with local groups and concerned citizens Wednesday and it was decided the Inter-Cultural Association of Victoria would handle the task working out of its office on the fourth floor of the Central Building, 620 View.

"We are really grateful to the association," Mika said. "It is the logical organization because it already provides services to immigrants in helping them adapt to life here."

Mika said he will be going to the Capital Region Board on July 25 to ask the board to give the association a $3,800 grant to help defray office and telephone expenses.

In other developments, the Red Cross has launched a nation-wide campaign to raise funds to aid the beleagured boat people in refugee camps in South East Asia.

Peter Hinton, executive director of the Victoria branch said the goal for B.C. is $50,000.

He noted the local response has fallen short of expectations, with only about $1,000 pledged to date, and blamed that on a lack of publicity.

"One can't emphasize enough the horrible tragedy of what is taking place and the need to have something down right now," he said in appealing for support.

Father Jackson, vicar-general of the Roman Catholic diocese on Vancouver Island, said an appeal has been sent out to 400 key people in the 30 parishes on the island.

To date between 30 to 40 groups have indicated they would like to be sponsors, he said.

Canon MacRae said his church will be swinging into action now that details of the federal government program have been worked out.

He said there was no point in making preparations until now because of the uncertainty surrounding quotas and delays in processing refugees to come to Canada.

He said Canada has only 10 immigration officers scattered throughout the Far East who are handling the refugee problem, a number, he felt totally inadequate to the task. The number should be increased at least three-fold, he suggested.

Meanwhile, one of the main goals of the United Nations refugee conference beginning Friday in Geneva was realized before it began: Led by the United States, Western nations have promised to provide homes for 250,000 displaced Indochinese refugees — double their original offer.

As diplomats tried to persuade China not to use the two-day conference as a forum for political attacks on Vietnam, Hanoi warned against a political witch-hunt.

Canada's decision to cut direct food and other aid to Vietnam is unwise and unjust, Phan Hien, Vietnam's deputy foreign minister, told a press conference in Geneva today.

Hien also indicated Canada is unlikely to get a family-reunification agreement with Vietnam although his country is willing to let some persons go directly to Canada.

"We don't believe it is necessary to sign any documents whatsoever," Hien said when asked about signing such an agreement.

the person's attention was focused on accomplishing the administration's goals and what percentage on accomplishing his own personal goals.

Another question: "How capable is this person at working toward implementing a decision with which he-she may not agree?" The rater was asked to check a number from one to six with "reluctant" the lowest rating and "eager" the highest.

Another: "How confident is this person?" The one-to-seven seven scale ran from "self-doubting" at the bottom, to "confident" in the middle and "cocky" at the top.

Another section called for rating the employee's "political skills." A scale of one to six ran from "naive" at the low end to "savy," apparently a misspelling of savvy, at the top.

In addition to the questions on the form, which must be filled out for each official, the raters were asked to rank their employees from best to worst. They also were told to indicate whether they would hire each person again and whether they would recommend the individual for another job.

It was also learned Wednesday that when the smoke clears from the White House staff and cabinet shake-up, Carter hopes to become a "teaching president," freed from settling administration bickering to concentrate on long-range national problems.

That goal was reflected in Jordan's promotion to chief of staff, which for the first time in Carter's 30 months in office elevated one staff member above others at the top.

Detour ahead!

Victoria will divert its tourist promotion activities to Vancouver and Seattle this year in response to the gas shortage south of the border, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Mel Cooper said Wednesday.

He told a luncheon meeting at The Empress there is little point in promoting Victoria in southern California this year if few want to drive this far.

A tourist blitz to Vancouver will be conducted in October.

"The time is right for this and we feel more Vancouver people should see Victoria."

If the blitz is successful it would keep tourist traffic high in late October and early November when it normally falls off.

Following the Vancouver blitz, boosters will continue to Seattle.

The group will consist of volunteers under the direction of the chamber and will be backed by Tourism B.C.

Organizer for the event is David Price, an official of B.C. Steamship Co., the provincial government agency operating the Princess Marguerite.

Where can we bed them all down?

By AL FORREST

Victoria will reach a crisis this weekend when the number of visitors will exceed the space available to accommodate them.

"Quite frankly we just don't know where we're going to put them all," says Visitors Information Centre president Ed Higgin.

The crowds will fill all 4,500 hotel rooms from Sooke to Sidney, will use all 150 emergency accommodation rooms in private Victoria houses and there will still be more and more visitors looking for beds.

The problem has been building for three years.

There was a minor crisis for six days in August last summer but the emergency housing program of 100 rooms in private homes provided the solution.

But this year there is no apparent answer.

The growth in the tourist industry — at least 15 per cent above last summer — is beyond all expectations.

In June of this year the downtown hotels reported full occupancy but there was sufficient space in the suburbs.

First sign of trouble came July 6 when almost all 4,500 hotel rooms in the region were booked.

It eased for a couple of days and then, on July 10, it returned with a rush and the emergency housing program had to be implemented using the 150 rooms in private homes.

The crunch came three weeks earlier than last year and the evidence is it will get even worse.

The emergency housing service has become a daily program. More residents will need to open their doors to tourists and even then there may not be enough.

"If appears this weekend we are going to have to divert some latecomers up to Duncan or Nanaimo," Higgin said.

Higgin views the crush with mixed emotions. The staff of six full-time members plus seven summer help is rushed off its feet, despite the increase of two from last summer.

The extra workers, mostly university students, are putting in long hours.

At the same time the problem has its bright side, Higgin said.

"We are demonstrating to investors that we need more hotel space by next summer. There is no point in telling investors that. We have to show them by having overflow crowds. That is the only way to convince them."

He said there are reports the city can count on an additional 300 hotel rooms by next summer. But this still won't be nearly enough.

Not if the tourist flow continues to increase at its present rate.

Don Nixon, the VIC staff member in charge of the accommodation program, agrees the city probably won't be able to house all the tourists expected this weekend.

"The occupancy rate is running between 105 per cent and 110 per cent every night."

Phone number for the accommodation hot line is 388-4313. There are four phone lines with that number answered by a staff of three during the day and by two in the evening.

Nixon said some citizens are renting their basement rooms and even backyard campers to help out. Rents are usually low. Some charge nothing at all.

"In cases where there is no charge, the tourist usually leaves $10 under the pillow. Everyone has been helpful.

"Some citizens offer to drive down and pick up the tourists. We had a couple from Oregon who came in to thank us for sending them to a private home. They stayed up until midnight talking. It added to the enjoyment of their visit."

Murray Glazier, chairman of the Capital Region Board, says while the tourist surge is welcome, the promotional activity could backfire if the number of visitors began to exceed the total amount of space to accommodate them.

"Those who have not been able to find space will not feel friendly towards Victoria."

The city will also have to do more to make the visitors welcome.

"Tourists are becoming more sophisticated all the time. When they come back to Victoria they want to see new attractions. We have to keep changing and improving our city."

Improvements during the past five years have been remarkable, he said, but the time has come whens the city should seriously consider closing the Government Street mall to vehicle traffic.

"I see tourists standing in the middle of the street taking pictures and it is a beautiful scene — except for the trucks parked there and the traffic passing by."

It should be closed off and school bands should be down there every day entertaining the visitors and local citizens.

But most important of all, Glazier said, additional hotel space must be provided or tourists are going to be complaining — and with justification. There have already been several reports of hotels turning people away despite the fact they had confirmed reservations.

"That does not create a good impression for Victoria."

Income tax fraud outweighs welfare rip-off, study shows

By JANE COVERNTON
Times Staff

The rate of welfare fraud is lower than the rate of income tax fraud, according to a booklet prepared by two University of Victoria social workers.

The booklet — Welfare Rights and Gain — demolishes the myth that the welfare system is being ripped off, says co-author Marjorie Martin.

"When people read the booklet they see that the human resources has a comprehensive system to make sure everything is checked. It is very difficult to cheat," Martin said.

The other myths about welfare that Martin and Marilyn Callahan hope to dispel are that welfare is a "fat life" and that most welfare recipients could get jobs.

Although welfare rates were increased substantially in April, the basic rate for a single person is still only $240 a month and now any special expenses are expected to be met by the monthly cheque.

Martin says that the welfare people she meets are worried about the fall when costs go up, heating bills start mounting, raincoats are needed.

To dispel the myth that welfare recipients could be working, if only they'd try, Martin quotes statistics.

She says 60 per cent of those on assistance are senior citizens or handicapped, 30 per cent are single parents, and of the remaining 10 per cent, most are marginally employable people in their 40s or 50s with health problems or a lack of education.

Why does society seem to need these myths about welfare?

Says Martin: "We're in a worrisome state because of the pace, the amount of unemployment, the uncertainty about the future of the country, high taxes, the high cost of government, the fear that government is not providing leadership.

"The welfare recipient is a high-profile scapegoat."

Martin says the new minister of human resources, Grace McCarthy, is taking a positive businesslike attitude towards assistance and is trying to clear away the myths.

The previous minister, Bill Vander Zalm, was well known for his political cries of welfare abuse.

The booklet is really about the law, not about the emotional aspects of welfare. But Martin has conducted workshops with welfare recipients

"Most of us can look forward to a raise, to things getting better. For people on welfare, it's always a downhill run. Everything gets shabby. They get physically run down. They get that bottom-of-the-heap feeling. There is no fat life on welfare."

The booklet is available in bulk from the UVic school of social work and from Community Law Offices.

'Chains co-operating'

Management problem cited at mainland co-op

The president of the V.I. Greenhouse Growers Co-operative said today his group has had excellent co-operation from the major supermarket chains in selling hothouse tomatoes.

Jim Sing of Gordon Head was reacting to a Times story Wednesday in which Saanich farmer Jack Arnaud charged that B.C. tomatoes are being left to rot in a Burnaby warehouse. The situation was caused by supermarkets dumping foreign produce on local markets, he charged.

Arnaud said he believed the dumping is part of a conspiracy by the major chains to break the price of the commodity on the local market. In fact, the wholesale price of tomatoes had dropped from $12 for a 20-pound case to $11, and California tomatoes are coming in at about $6 for a 30-pound case.

Sing didn't refute Arnaud's claims, but suggested the problem is with the management of the Western Greenhouse Growers Co-operative, not a conspiracy on the part of the chains.

"We've had a good manager here, and we've had good cooperation from the supermarkets," said Sing.

Any tomatoes not sold on local island markets have found their way to Vancouver where they've usually been sold quickly.

The Times learned that one manager recently left the Burnaby-based Western Greenhouse Growers Co-operative, and that his replacement started on Tuesday. A source within the co-operative confirmed that some of the problems had in fact stemmed from the change in management.

But John Christiansen, produce merchandising manager for Canada Safeway in B.C., suggested the problem resulted from the growers offering overripe tomatoes on the Vancouver market.

Sing said that with proper management tomatoes could be held for at least a week, and if growers were picking at the right time there should be no problems with too-ripe tomatoes.

He thinks the mainland co-operative will solve its problems once its new manager takes control of the situation.

Rocks torch Salmonbellies but fire might fizzle out

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

New Westminster Salmonbellies tried to play Victoria Shamrocks at their own game and got burned in Western Lacrosse Association action at Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

In a wide-open, end-to-end affair in which only four penalties were called, two to each club (and that was different) the Shamrocks ran the Salmonbellies into the floor before emerging with a 14-10 victory.

But the Shamrocks may have gotten burned as well.

New Westminster is considering protesting the game.

New Westminster complained after the game that the Shamrocks had used five senior "B" players, which is in violation of the rules.

WLA by-laws allow clubs to use three senior "B" players without question but, when more than three are used, special permission must be obtained.

The Shamrocks, who used five senior "B" players Wednesday, did not have that special permission. The Rocks have used more than three senior "B" players as fill-ins previously this season, but this is the first official complaint.

The reason is obvious.

The game was vitally important to both clubs, because victory, if it stands, gives the Rocks the league lead with 33 points, two more than the Salmonbellies. The Rocks have three games in hand and the Bellies only four to play.

The Rocks broke the contest wide open in the opening minutes of the third period. They scored five unanswered goals by the 11-minute mark to go with a pair by Bob Cool in the final two minutes of the second period for seven goals without a reply.

Before then it had been a tough, hard-fought battle with no quarter asked or given.

The Rocks had gone on top 3-0 early in the first with the Bellies taking over in the second and leading 7-4 at the 12:47 mark.

That's when the Shamrocks resurgence started.

Rick Baker got his second goal of the game and Kevin Alexander his first, less than two minutes apart, before Chris Hall scored his second of four. And that goal, at the time, was what might have been the most important goal of the game.

With Shamrocks' Bill Marechek serving a penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct for mouthing at referee Wayne Frank, Hall broke away to score a shorthanded goal and bring the Shamrocks even at 7-7.

Derek Dickson got one back to put New Westminster ahead 8-7 but Cool scored his two quickies, 56 seconds apart, both on passes from Kevin Alexander, to give the Irish their 9-8 lead before the final period.

With the start of the third period, Alexander got two quick counters and both on assists from Cool as they complemented one another well all evening. That eased the pressure and gave the Irish a working margin.

Hall then followed with his third and fourth goals and Randy Bryant with his only marker and the Rocks led 14-8.

Salmonbellies got two late counters from Wayne Goss and Ken Brown to make the final tally respectable.

Shamrocks goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer and his opposite, Jim Poelzer in the New Westminster nets, both played well. Smeltzer stopped 52 drives and was particularly adept in the first period when he stopped 21 shots.

Poelzer after a sharp start, gave way late in the second. He finally was replaced by Jim Greenwell in the third but before he left he had assisted on four New Westminster goals.

Alexander and Hall each had four goals for the Rocks, Alexander's output marking the fifth time he has scored four since joining the club. He also had two assists.

Cool had three assists to go with his two goals while Jim Lynch had three assists. Kevin Kennedy scored the other Shamrock goal.

Jack Fulton had three goals for the Salmonbellies, Goss and Len Cimminelli each a pair with Brian Tasker, Brown and Dickson getting singles.

An unknown leads the Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Bill Longmuir: serious contender for the British Open golf title, or one-day wonder?

Longmuir, a 26-year-old Englishman, shot a record-equalling 65 in the first round Wednesday to lead a cadre of Americans into today's second round.

Despite having won only two tournaments as a pro, the virtual unknown was convinced he could go on to glory.

"I think I can win the Open if I hang on and just play nicely," said Longmuir, who was once so broke he drove a truck to raise money to continue as a player and has entered male personality contests.

But the man with the unlikely pedigree hit eight birdies in the first 12 holes over the windy Lytham course to leave Hale Irwin, the United States Open champion, three shots back in second spot.

Irwin shot 68, and Jerry Pate was another storke back in third place.

"I am under no pressure whatsoever," said Longmuir, slightly bemused by all the attention his round attracted. "A 65 is a great bonus for me, and I am going to go out to try and make another big score.

"I am feeling good and feel I can make a score. The crowds have been behind me and I feel confident."

The battle-hardened American pros were amazed at Longmuir's birdie run.

"The guy who shot 65?" Irwin asked. "I take my hat off to him. Good gosh, what an amazing round of golf. Incredible."

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, who like favorite Tom Watson found the narrow fairways too much too handle, joked: "I don't believe the score and I don't believe there is such a person.'

Both shot one-over 72, with Nicklaus's round including a hole-in-one.

Longmuir went into today's second round as one of only four players under par.

Irwin, who defied the convention of the day by collecting three birdies on the back nine of the 6,822-yard, par-71 course, just edged in front of Pate, who turned four-under but finished two-under at 69.

"It was very difficult," the bespectacled Irwin said. "There are so many holes with narrow fairways and the wind made things even worse."

Irwin was nevertheless very satisfied with his round.

"I felt like I drove the ball really well," he said. "I feel excellent that I had a good score in the first round. It always helps."

Pate also found the 40-kilometre-an-hour winds troublesome.

"The wind blew real good," he said. "It was much harder than it seemed. I have such a long, slow swing and when I get in winds, I have a heck of a time. I can hear my club move through the air."

"Longmuir's round was incredible, no question about it," said Watson. "It was really fantastic in those conditions. Almost beyond reason."

Watson was tied with Ben Crenshaw, Gary Cullen, Hugh Biaocchi, Dennis Clarke and Nicklaus, who aced the 212-yard fifth hole with a six iron.

One stroke in front of that group was Orville Moody, Lee Trevino, British amateur Peter McEvoy and Australian Terry Gale at 71, with Japanese star Isao Aoki alone at one-under 70.

Veteran Gary Player of South Africa shot 77 and was overshadowed by his 17-year-old son, who posted a 75.

World youth pick 'surprised, happy'

Carlos Almeida, the latest Victoria addition to the Canadian team going to the world youth soccer championship tournament in Tokyo, was pleasantly surprised when he received word of his selection.

The 18-year-old goalkeeper was training with the Pan American Games squad when he was chosen to attend the youth training camp along with four other goalies at the University of British Columbia "a couple of months ago."

Almeida, who helped Metro Toyota gain promotion from the second to the first division of the Vancouver Island League last season, said only two goalies were picked out of the five attending the camp.

"I was very surprised . . . I didn't really think about it," he said.

The Canadian squad assembles at the Richmond Inn Aug. 9, departs for Hong Kong and the tournament the following day and returns around Sept. 10.

Two other Victorians — Ian Bridge and David McCaig — were chosen to the team earlier and helped Canada finish runner-up to Mexico in the recent Central American and Caribean youth tournament.

Bridge is now playing with Seattle Sounders and McCaig plays for Gorge in the Island League.

Almeida has good feelings about the world tournament and perhaps an added incentive to do well.

Canada plays Portugal, where his parents orginated, in the first round.

"It's going to be a great experience," he exclaimed.

Mussels in double win

Victoria Mussels ended an eight-game losing streak by winning two Northwest League baseball games against Grays Harbor Mets in one night Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park.

Victoria started the evening by sealing a 10-3 victory over Grays Harbor Mets in a game which was suspended after eight innings June 29 because of travel arrangements.

Victoria was leading 10-3 when the game was suspended and Grays Habor was retired in the ninth inning Wednesday without scoring a run.

Then Ed Koziol, who finished up the ninth inning of the suspended game, pitched a seven-hitter in the second tussle to lead Mussels to an 8-3 victory.

Koziol, who now has a 4-0 record, struck out 10 batters.

Jim Burton, who knocked in two runs during Victoria's seven-run sixth inning, finished with three hits.

The two teams meet again tonight at 7:30 in Royal Athletic.

In another tussle, Mel Nelson tossed a four-hitter as K&R Sooke downed Tally-Ho 3-0 at Sooke Athletic Park.

Carolan scattered seven hits for the win while Wilkin threw a two-hitter.

Builders managed to score both runs on one hit in the fourth inning.

At Sooke, Dale Marshall and Norm Goudie each notched a home run for the home club.

In Victoria Senior Women's League action at Hyacinth Park, Nancy McLachlan boosted her record to 11-2 by pitching VI 90 Vicettes to a 5-2 victory over Esquimalt Combos and Kathy Cave set the hitting pace as Island Dryco Breakers tripped Capital City Pirates, 10-4.

Yeta Dilalla doubled in two runs, including the winner, for Vicettes.

Cave had two hits in four turns at bats and scored twice for Breakers while winning-pitcher Pam Jones, who scattered four hits, scored the winning run.

At Macdonald Park, The Saints topped Rebels 10-4 and Mayfair Insurance outgunned James Bay Inn 5-3 in Macdonald Men's League play.

In Heywood Men's League action, Victoria Athletics and Remco Office Systems played to a 6-6 deadlock through 12 innings before the game was called because of darkness.

Stamps show power by routing bombers

By The Canadian Press

To many of the 33,000-plus fans at Calgary's McMahon Stadium, Wednesday night's aerial display must have brought back fond memories of a decade ago — when Peter Liske was shredding opposing secondaries and setting league and conference records with his pinpoint passing.

But the man of the hour Wednesday night was Ken Johnson, a National Football League cast-off who spent much of the 1978 Canadian Football League season in a back-up capacity with the Stampeders.

He made the most of his starting assignment, however, completing 16 of 27 passes for 271 yards and three touchdowns as the Stampeders made a successful 1979 debut, drubbing Winnipeg Blue Bombers 35-7.

In Eastern Conference action, Toronto Argonauts downed Hamilton Tiger-Cats 18-11 in a game dominated by penalties and turnovers.

The Stampeders totally dominated the contest, decided after only one quarter as they built up a 15-3 advantage and then took a 23-6 lead into the second half.

Johnson, given the starting nod over John Hufnagel by coach Jack Gotta, teamed up with Willie Armstead for touchdown passes covering 16 and 75 yards in the first quarter and hit tight end Bob Viccars with a 12-yard strike in the second.

The Blue Bombers, now winless in two starts, managed a paltry 104 yards of net offence, including just 26 on the ground. Their top groundgainer turned out to be back-up quarterback Bill Troup, who gained all of 10 yards on two carries.

The only bright spot for Winnipeg was the performance of kicker Bernie Ruoff, who accounted for all the Blue Bombers' points on field goals of 31 and 51 yards and a 90-yard single.

To make matters worse for the Bombers, Joe Poplawski, their leading receiver, left the game early in the first quarter with a suspected broken ankle.

At Hamilton, the two traditional eastern foes took turns trying to give the game away with fumbles and interceptions. There were a total of 12 turnovers in the game, seven of them interceptions. The bad blood between the Argos and Ticats was also prevalent with a total of 250 yards in penalties meted out.

Starting field to be cut?

Western Speedway manager Tony Mortel is considering a cut in the starting field of the 75-lap feature race tonight that forms part of the $55,000 Speedweek Northwest open super-stock series.

Some of the top drivers entered complained that the traffic was too heavy and Mortel might cut the starting field to 20 from 24 when action gets underway with time trials at 7 tonight.

Joe Ruttman of Upland, Calif., won the feature race Tuesday at Western and Roy Haslam of Victoria claimed a victory in the series opener Saturday at Skagit Speedway near Mt. Vernon, Wash.

The series concludes with two races at Evergreen Speedway near Monroe, Wash., at the weekend.

Caps lose to Diplomats

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Whitecaps came close but not close enough in the North American Soccer League action at Washington, Wednesday night. The Whitecaps, who Sunday had shocked New York Cosmos, 4-2, lost in the final minutes to Washington Diplomats, 2-1, as Sonny Askew scored the winning goal in the 85th minute.

Askew's winning shot, his fifth goal of the year, came from a difficult angle 10 yards away, with Bob Irausci and Paul Cannall assisting.

Washington fullback Don Droege headed in his first goal of the season in the 42nd minute from seven yards out, off a direct free kick by midfielder Joe Horvath.

Vancouver tied it after Washington midfielder Jim Steele was called for tripping in the 48th minute. Alan Ball easily converted the ensuing penalty kick.

The Whitecaps' hopes for drawing even were dealt a severe blow when leading scorer Kevin Hector, who had 15 goals, left the contest in the 67th minute with an undetermined injury.

Meanwhile, Atlanta Chiefs put Edmonton in the North American Soccer League's record book. But it's doubtful the Drillers will thank their opponent.

The Chiefs handed the Drillers a 5-1 defeat, extending Edmonton's consecutive losing streak to 14 games. That broke the previous record of 13 set by San Jose Earthquakes in the 1978 season.

In other games, Toronto Blizzard shaded Rochester Lancers 2-1 in a shootout, New York Cosmos beat Fort Lauderdale Strikers 4-3, Chicago Sting downed Memphis Rogues 3-1, California Surf nipped Portland Timbers 2-1 in sudden-death overtime, Tulsa Roughnecks topped Detroit Express 2-1, Seattle Sounders bounced New England Tea Men 4-1, Houston Hurricane beat San Jose 2-1 and Philadelphia Fury blanked Minnesota Kicks 1-0.

The Drillers, in their first season in the NASL, once had a 5-5 record in the Western Division of the American Conference. However, the Drillers now are 5-19 and have 58 points, 43 behind leading San Diego.

Victorian Ian Bridge scored a goal for the Sounders.

The Blizzard and Lancers were tied 1-1 after regulation play and 15 minutes of sudden-death overtime. Then, before 11,317 fans in Toronto, Peter Lorimer and Sam Lenarduzzi, formerly with the Whitecaps, scored in the shootout while Pat Ercoli replied for Rochester.

Johan Neeskens knocked in a header with 2:41 left to lead New York over Fort Lauderdale.

The winning goal that broke a two-game losing streak by the Cosmos came after the Strikers' Teofilo Cubillas tied the score 3-3 at 84:22 on a pass from Maurice Whittle.

Earlier, New York took the lead on two Dennis Tueart goals.

Lawrie Abrahams, with his fifth goal in four matches, headed in the winner at 2:45 of sudden-death overtime to give the Surf its win over Portland.

Parks pitches no-hitter

Tony Parks ensured a victory Tuesday, firing a no-hitter to lead Esquimalt Lions to a 2-0 decision over Lakehill in the Greater Victoria Little League baseball championship tournament at Lambrick Park.

Parks struck out 12 and walked five while chalking up the win.

Catcher Don Mowat led the offence with two hits to drive in both runs.

Max Low

No ringer, this player at game of horseshoes

Played a mean game of horseshoes Tuesday night and I learned a thing or two, too.

Like the fact that the Greater Victoria Horseshoe Pitching Association, which has been going continuously since 1935, is growing every year and the game itself is booming.

So popular has it become recently, in fact, that there are now almost 100 players — men and women — involved in league matches Tuesday and Thursday evenings down at Glanford Park, where six new pitches are being put in to cater for the growth. That will give Glanford a total of 18 pitches and, said secretary Jack Carson, the association hopes to stage the Canadian horseshoe pitching championships there in either 1980 or 1981.

Some 14 teams (four to a team) are taking part in men's league play which started back in May and runs through to the playoffs in September. And there are six teams in the women's league.

That's a total of 97 people pitching horseshoes each week, almost the same as when the club got started in the 1930s with a membership of 100. Horses were a little more in vogue then, too.

While I watched some real oldtimers and quite a few youngsters, too, pitch in the league Tuesday night, I met Roy Jago, the Island's number one player and (with 30 years of competition) the longest playing-member of the club.

And I learned from Jack Carson that after the club almost died out in the war years and struggled in the late 40s, Roy Jago, Colin Butts and Frank Boone got it back on its feet again. Boone, at 76, is still a regular in the league.

"We only had 65 men playing last summer and this year we have 70," Jack explained. "In a couple of years we hope to have 100 men playing and correspondingly more women, too.

"It's really growing across the country, as well," he said. "While we are happy to draw 50 or 60 players to a tournament here, back east in Saskatchewan and Ontario they often have 150 or 200 players from all over Canada competing and it's nothing for clubs to have 250 members."

The Greater Victoria Horseshoe Pitching Association often appears at fairs and shows to give exhibitions or help stage tournaments and Jack Carson said if any organization wants help when running horshoe pitching events at things like picnics they can get it by phoning him at 382-9060 or Colin Butts at 384-9000.

"We'll push horshoes any way we can," he said with a big grin.

I learned a few pointers from Jack. For example, the shoes aren't much like the ones horses walk on. They're a bit squarer than those, weigh two and-a-half pounds, are carried around in private little wooden boxes with locks and come with names like "Professional Super Ringer" stamped on them.

I learned that in league play a ringer is worth three points and any shoe within six inches of the pin gets you one point. You pitch 50 shoes per game so a perfect game would be 150 points but, don't hold your breath, that's just about impossible, unless as Jack said, you're Elmer Hohl "the six-time world champ from Down East."

I learned from Roy Jago, too. I found (and my right shoulder muscles reminded me the next morning) that you pitch the shoes 40 feet (30 feet if you're in the women's league) through the air and try to land them somewhere near that infernally small pin.

Roy, averages around 95 points a game and has to play with a handicap of 20. At 53 he's still playing, he said, because he's the only Double A player here "and everyone is still trying to beat me." That keeps you on your toes, he said, and lends a touch of excitement to the whole thing.

It would have lent a touch of excitement to the whole thing for me if I could only have been able to tell you I got a ringer.

Roy wasn't playing in the league that night, just watching. But he borrowed some shoes (they're really very personal things) and said sort of matter-of-fact he'd just try to show me a couple of ringers. Clang, clang.

Still, Roy was very kind and said I was so impressive in my debut that he'd like to have me down there on his team! I didn't get that damned ringer though. But I'm working on it, Roy. I'm working on it.

Cosmos drub Kiwanis

Gordon Head Cosmopolitans left little to chance Wednesday, mauling Esquimalt Kiwanis 15-1 in a District Babe Ruth (13-year-olds) baseball championship tournament game at Bullen Park.

Chris Montgomery picked up the pitching victory and Gordon Head took advantage of several Esquimalt errors to win its first outing.

The tourney continues tonight with Triangle and Gordon Head tangling at 6:30.

Champ in final eight

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Defending champion Lynn Cooke of Vancouver was one of eight golfers in contention for the British Columbia women's amateur championship after the first day of match play Wednesday.

Cooke beat Dawn Coe of Cowichan, last year's B.C. junior champion, 3 and 2.

Three of the four B.C. team members survived the first day.

Holly Warne of Richmond edged Laura Iwasaki of Kamloops 6 and 5 and Gail Moore of Vancouver eliminated top Prince George junior Patti Grant, 4 and 3.

The only provincial team member to lose was Flo McFall of Richmond, who went down 3 and 2 to Vicki Woodcock of Vancouver.

In other play, Susan McCleery of Kamloops beat Billie Bartley of Richmond 3 and 2, Tracy Stoddard of Vancouver needed two extra holes to stop Lynn Akert of Penticton, Val Westall of Vancouver beat Maureen Hibberson of Victoria 5 and 3 and 1978 provincial junior team member Lisa Young of Prince Rupert beat Anne Newman of Campbell River 4 and 3.

In today's first round, Cooke plays Westall, Moore meets Stoddard, Warne is against Younge and Woodcock plays McCleery.

The two survivors after today's second 18 holes play a 36-hole final Friday.

The B.C. team of Cooke, Moore, McFall and Warne was selected Tuesday.

Skateboard event

Something new will be added to the Victoria-area sports scene Friday.

Scheduled at Saanich Skatewave on Finlayson is an international skateboard competition, the second of four matches that will decided the first winner of the Northwest Challenge.

Competing against the Saanich Skatewave squad will be other 11-skater teams from skateboard parks at Olympia and Kennewick., Wash., and Burnaby.

Five experts, three intermediates and three beginners compete for each team, earning points in often-spectacular action under a scoring system similar to the one used in gymnastics.

Olympics grabbed the series lead in the opening match at Olympia.

Adult admission price is $1 for Friday's competition, which starts at 6 p.m., folowing an hour-long warmup session.

Arriba winner of yacht race

HONOLULU (AP) — Arriba, a 48-foot sloop out of Long Beach, Calif., was declared the over-all winner Wednesday of the biennial trans-Pacific yacht race to Hawaii from Los Angeles with an elapsed time of 14 days, 11 hours, 40 minutes and 54 seconds.

It was the slowest time ever for the race, which started in 1906 and has been run 30 times, as the yachts were plagued by lack of winds.

Hawks get Choyce

DALLAS (AP) — John Choyce, who has coached in five Central Hockey League cities in the last decade, has been named the new coach of Dallas Black Hawks.

Choyce replaces John Muckler, who led the Black Hawks to the CHL title last season. He becomes Dallas' fourth coach in four years.

Muckler — who previously said he did not want to coach again this year — is reported to have been offered a scouting job with Vancouver Canucks, the National Hockey League parent club of the Black Hawks.

WIN! $1,000⁰⁰ IN CASH PRIZES EVERY OTHER WEEK!

WIN! GRAND PRIZE TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII, By Wardair

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

LETTERS FOR TODAY, GAME NO. 2 ONLY

IN ORDER TO BE ELIGIBLE, YOUR ENTRY MUST COMPLY WITH RULE NO. 2

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.

2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.

3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.

4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.

5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.

6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.

7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.

8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.

9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

Cup finals to Brandon, Regina

CALGARY (CP) — Western Hockey League governors awarded the 1980 Memorial Cup series to Brandon and Regina at the conclusion of the league's annual meeting Wednesday.

The Manitoba and Saskatchewan cities received the nod over Calgary and Lethbridge, which had also submitted a joint bit to stage the round robin affair.

The first three games of the national final — which involves the champions of Canada's three tier-one leagues — will be played in Brandon with action shifting to Regina for the remaining four games.

Meanwhile, the governors announced they will soon hire two people to temporarily handle the duties of Ed Chynoweth who recently resigned as president of the WHL to join Calgary Wranglers.

One will work in the league office in Calgary, handling statistics, the WHL guide, news releases and registration. The second will be in charge of disciplinary matters and officials.

Dean, Reelie leads A's over Legion

COQUITLAM — Geordie Dean and Mike Reelie combined for 22 points to lead Coquitlam Adanacs to a 16-12 win over Esquimalt Legion in a Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League game here Wednesday.

Reelie scored four goals and added six assists and Dean tallied twice and assisted on 10 others.

Ken Storoshenko and Bob Jude each scored three goals for Adanacs, who held period leads of 6-1 and 9-7.

Mike Game led the Esquimalt attack with three goals. Jim Boyd, Tarey Pollock and Ed Van Dyke each scored twice.

Brian Celli stopped 36 shots for Coquitlam, while Mike Dutch and Bill Thomas combined for 41 saves in the Esquimalt net.

PPWC still fighting despite new ouster

The B.C. Labor Relations Board dealt the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC) another blow Wednesday, but union official Stan Shewaga said the union is not ready to concede defeat.

The board ordered the PPWC to remove its pickets from MacMillan Bloedel pulp and paper mills at Port Alberni and Powell River.

The decision follows the Canadian Paperworkers Union (CPU) ratification of a two-year contract with the forest industry by an 82-percent vote. The CPU represents workers at the two mills.

The board had earlier rejected a request by MacMillan Bloedel to have the pickets removed, but reversed its decision Wednesday ruling that the company now has a contract with the CPU.

Shewaga said the union would honor the order as it had done with similar board orders restricting picketing at other MacMillan Bloedel operations in the Vancouver area.

"It is a complete bastardization of the legislation that allows secondary picketing," he said.

"The companies and the board are trying to isolate Local 8 of the PPWC and destroy it because it is proving to be such an effective union.

Officials of the 5,500-member PPWC, which last week rejected the industry's contract agreement by 51.6 per cent, are to meet Friday in Vancouver.

Members of Local 8 are legally on strike at MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac mill near Nanaimo and have been sending picket squads around the province in an effort to paralyze all MacMillan Bloedel operations.

The 7,500-member CPU's acceptance of the forest industry contract offer was announced early Wednesday.

Early returns from the International Woodworkers of America, which has 30,000 coastal and 7,500 southern Interior members voting on the offer, show a 70-per-cent acceptance vote.

Searchers give up

Search and rescue officials have ended a formal search for a Williams Lake couple who have been missing for eight days on a flight to Williams Lake from Chilliwack.

Sixty-seven-year-old John Wheeler and his 63-year-old wife Atha disappeared during their planned two-and-a-half hour flight last week in a single-engine Cessna 172.

A spokesman for the rescue co-ordination centre said aircraft flying over the search area are being asked to keep a look out for the plane.

Female's odor dooms moths

OTTAWA (UPC) — Never underestimate the deadly power of perfume.

In the continuing war this summer on the gypsy moth infestation in British Columbia, Agriculture Canada announced Wednesday that 2,000 traps to lure unsuspecting male moths have been set up in Vancouver and southern B.C.

The traps contain an artificial female gypsy moth scent called disparlure.

A spokesman for the federal department said the presence of male moths in the traps will be the tipoff the bugs are in the area and agriculture officials will then locate and destroy nearby egg masses.

1st heroin 'grad'

The first patient to successfully complete the provincial government's heroin addiction treatment program at Brannan Lake near Nanaimo will be at work by the end of July, the provincial health ministry said Wednesday.

The unidentified 24-year-old mill worker, who volunteered for the program, was a methadone addict and had to rely on the heroin substitute in order to stay employed and self-supporting, the ministry said.

He started using soft drugs in 1968 and graduated to heroin by the time he was 15.

The man, who works for MacMillan Bloedel, said the company imposed no time limit for his treatment. He continued to collect sick pay while undergoing treatment.

TV pact rejected

About 170 employees at CHEK-TV here and CHAN-TV in Burnaby have voted 70 per cent to reject what B.C. Television calls its final contract offer.

However, leaders of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians said Tuesday they are seeking a new mandate from the membership to renew contract talks.

NABET represents about 100 employees at CHAN and 70 employees at CHEK.

The union has asked federal conciliator Mike Collins to report out of the dispute, which would clear the way for strike or lockout action.

No strike vote has been taken by the workers and a NABET spokesman said the feeling is that no one wants to go out on strike.

BCTV spokesman Art Collins said said Wednesday that details of the wage offer released by the union Tuesday differ from the company's interpretation of the offer.

Collins said the offer is more generous, particularly when considering compounding and the progressive wage scale.

"With those factors in mind, it makes for an average 25.9 per cent increase to BCTV members and an average 25.5 per cent increase to CHEK (Victoria) members over two years," he said. "That's exclusive of payments for penalties, premiums or improved benefits."

Collins said the company also has consented to improved vacations and maternity benefits and the addition of another statutory holiday.

Collins said that besides wages, another contentious issue is the union's demand that its members be used for out-of-town telecasts of football, hockey and soccer games.

Travel and accommodation costs for production crews would make this impractical, Collins said.

Union president John Wood said the company has offered a nine-per-cent increase in the first year and eight per cent in the second year but the increase in the second year is not compounded. It is based on salaries when the current contract expired Feb. 28.

Al Griffiths, NABET local president, said salaries for senior cameramen and producers at CHEK-TV are currently $1,037 a month and employees in comparable positions at CHAN-TV make about 13 per cent more.

He said CHEK-TV workers sought parity with a 23-percent wage increase request in a one-year pact but the company refused and the demand was dropped.

Suspect hid under table

Two youths — aged 15 and 17 — will appear in court charged with an early morning break-in at Ensign Motors at View and Cook.

City police responding to a 1 a.m. report of damage at the premises found a back window had been smashed.

When police entered the building they found one suspect hiding under a receptionist's table and the other in a washroom.

Alert Bay mediator set

The Anglican priest named to tackle native health care problems at Alert Bay is ready to leave for the community within the next few days, Health Minister Bob McClelland said Wednesday.

McClelland appointed Rev. Eric Powell, who has experience in dealing with native problems, to help ease the distrust that has built up between Indians and the trustees and staff at Alert Bay's St. George's Hospital.

"It has been very difficult to find a person with the right background, but his experience of native problems in remote areas, his leadership ability and his human understanding make him the ideal person to tackle what will be a difficult and complex undertaking," McClelland said.

However, Nimpkish Indian band leader Roy Crammer said if McClelland continues to refuse to hold a public inquiry, Indians will hold an inquiry of their own.

He said he does not think Powell will "change things too much around here."

The minister's action follows a recommendation by a seven-member inquiry team that a special representative be sent to Alert Bay to rectify the difficult situation.

The inquiry investigated the Jan. 22 death of 11-year-old Renee Smith, an Indian girl who died from a ruptured appendix and acute peritonitis at St. George's Hospital.

An inquest into the girl's death found negligence by Dr. Jack Pickup, the lone doctor in the remote community.

Indians in the area boycotted the government inquiry into hospital health care standards.

Meanwhile, the community's federal Indian health nurse, Vera Robinson, will quit her government job next month to work with the Nimpkish band.

She said one of her main aims will be to try and deal with alcoholism problems in the 1,000-member band.

Robinson failed in a bid to have the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. blacklist the hospital.

McClelland said Wednesday part of Powell's job would be "to provide greater opportunities for the Indians of Alert Bay to have a voice in the organization of health care in their community."

Judo chances not chopped

VANCOUVER (CP) — An 18-year-old Yukon youth who hoped to become a member of Canada's Olympic judo team may still have a chance despite nearly losing his hand in an industrial accident.

A medical team using micro-surgical techniques worked for 10 hours Tuesday at Vancouver General Hospital to sew back Curt Campbell's nearly-severed right hand.

Dr. Peter R. Steele said in a telephone interview Wednesday from Whitehorse that Campbell was brought to hospital Monday afternoon after a power saw almost cut off his hand at the wrist.

Dr. David Kester, head of the special surgical team, said it will take "several days to a week before we can be reasonably certain that the hand can be saved."

Micro-surgery is a technique in which procedures are done using a microscope so that doctors can see blood vessels and tissue better.

Equity asks picket curbs

VANCOUVER (UPC) — A construction firm forced to stop work at the Equity silver mine because of picketing by striking workers from the Endako mine in Fraser Lake has applied to the provincial Labor Relations Board for a cease-and-desist order.

The picket lines, which idled about 250 workers employed by Commonwealth Construction, were set up at the Equity mine in Houston Tuesday by the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers. The 600-member union has been on strike for five months.

The Equity mine is owned by Placer Development, which also operates the Endako molybdenum mine, Placer spokesman Bill Thompson said Wednesday. Thompson said the secondary picketing at Equity contravenes the provincial labor code.

About 600 CAIMAW members have been on strike against Placer since Feb. 14. Negotiations have broken down and the union vowed to increase secondary picketing to put economic pressure on Placer.

The union rejected the company's last offer of 22 percent over 24-months.

Indians seeking fishery change

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Cowichan Indian Band will look into local control of fishing after the Supreme Court of Canada Wednesday dismissed an appeal by eight band members convicted of illegal fishing, band chief Dennis Alphonse said.

The court said the Indians convicted in 1975 of fishing for salmon in closed waters were not exempt from the Fisheries Act as they had claimed.

They were convicted of fishing in the Cowichan and Koksilah Rivers, which were closed in accordance with the Fisheries Act.

Alphonse said his band would consider a form of fishing bylaw similar to one established by the Squamish band, which appointed its own fisheries officer to govern fishing on parts of the Squamish, Capilano and Seymour rivers.

Walk of the Week

Early start pays rich dividends

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A city businessman — seriously infected with the walking bug — used to get up at five every morning and walk for three hours before going to work.

One of his favorite haunts was Oak Bay, especially along Beach Drive.

He believed if you really want to enjoy a walk get going just before sunrise because you will see and hear a different world.

Once he watched a killer whale and her young just off Cattle Point. On other occasions he spotted birds seldom seen in urban areas, like the golden eagle and the barn owl.

The businessman has since moved to Calgary where he probably has made new discoveries in his love affair with walking.

Perhaps his 5 a.m. habit is a bit much for the average exercise-seeker. The early start does has advantages but there is still a lot to be seen later in the day on walks through Uplands Park, where some unusual plants bloom in spring, Cattle Point, Willows Beach and Shoal Bay.

Here is a walk through a magnificent residential area, a park, a rocky point, sandy beach, marina, and even a business centre for the window-shopping crowd.

Tarry there for a while before leaving the park on Beach Drive.

Then turn left on Beach and enter Cattle Point via its traffic exit point, circle back until you get to the stairs at Willows Beach. Follow the beach promenade, turn right on Bowker and left on Beach and continue until you get to Oak Bay Marina where you can stop for refreshments or look at the boats.

Retrace your steps and turn left on Windsor and and right on Newport. Continue to Oak Bay Avenue, past the village with its interesting shops, turn right on Foul Bay and return to the recreation centre. And why not plan a swim to end the outing?

Give yourself at least three hours for this walk.

If you are interested in other Oak Bay walks you can get from the rec centre a brochure with a list of five, including points of interest.

But the brochure has a glaring omission. It ignores Uplands Park!

Engineers can stick it in their ears: Couvelier

Saanich mayor Mel Couvelier said Wednesday he and his council will decide where roads should be built, not municipal or provincial government engineers.

"My council agrees with my planners we should tell the engineers to stick it in their ears," he told the Capital Regional District's regional planning committee

His outburst came after regional transportation planner David Langley told the committee that Saanich engineers had been consulted in the district's transportation planning.

Langley quoted from a report that the proposed east-west route west of Pat Bay Highway, running south from Vanalman to connect with Roy Road, would require improvement of the two existing roads and that the new link would pass close to recently developed and developing areas.

Noting that Saanich had decided to abandon the east-west route and the four-laning of Glanford after a May 30 public hearing, the report said: "These decisions will presumably be examined in some detail by the ministry of highways, whose approval is required before rezoning can be confirmed."

Couvelier objected to having a road built through Saanich designed to feed traffic from the Highlands district, which is expected to have eventually a population increase of 20,000.

He said the prediction of a 320,000 regional population by 1986 is unrealistic.

Couvelier said he understood the Highlands were not going to be developed to any great extent. (Of the total 15,000 acres, 11,000 is to be zoned for 10-acre lots and the other 4,000 acres will remain in 45-acre lots as a reserve for future urban development.)

He said elected officials and planners have to be concerned with the quality of life in their communities.

"Saanich is a unique community. For God's sake let's not throw it out.

"The problem is engineers' sole objectives are to move people two minutes quicker and in a straight line."

In the report, C.H. Wakelin, acting director of regional planning, had recommended Saanich be asked to confirm with the ministry of highways that access to the Royal Oak industrial site will be adequate without the east-west route.

He also recommended Saanich, regional district and highways ministry staff meet to examine the regional transportation model traffic forecasts for the east-west route and prepare a report on the long-term requirements for the western end of the route, including effects on Burnside, Interurban, Carey and Wilkinson.

It was decided to have regional and Saanich planners get together to discuss road development that would meet the wishes of Saanich council.

'Rose's' cockney origins still linger . . .

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jean Marsh, who came to prominence in North America for her role as the housemaid Rose in Upstairs, Downstairs, was indignant.

So she said to the prominent British critic who was being rude to her, "If you don't stop being so condescendin', I'll give ya a bunch of fives."

In Cockney lingo "a bunch of fives," is a fist and Marsh comes by the phrase legitimately.

She was born in the Islington section of London within the sound of the Bow Bells, which by tradition made her an authentic Cockney.

However, the more-refined voice she uses now is the result of seven years of schooling and lots of determination.

She speaks about her birth as if she personally remembers it.

"One Sunday morning about 11:30 a.m. my mother said to my father, 'I think its going to happen.'

"My father got on his bike and started off to get the midwife and my mother was going crazy because she could smell dinner cooking and she thought she would miss it because I was going to be born and it would take so long."

"I was born about three-quarters of an hour later.

"The midwife slapped my bottom, I went 'awk' and I went to sleep. My mother was able to have her meal and she says I haven't caused her any bother since."

When very young, Ms. Marsh developed a form of paralysis. Her parents sent her to a ballet school hoping that the dancing would strengthen her muscles.

It was at the dancing school that she underwent a traumatic experience the memory of which also still lingers.

When she was about 11, she was told to report to the school office for audition. The person at the desk shouted to someone in an adjoining room, "It's Jean Marsh and she says she is supposed to audition this afternoon."

"The daughter of the woman who ran the school yelled back, 'You can't send her, she's so ugly.'

"I didn't know how to cope with it. It was just dreadful. I ran out of the school to a nearby park. I got on a swing and I was crying so much that as I swung hard the tears were coming back hitting me in the face."

"I didn't know any four-letter swear words, I only knew 'bloody' and 'bugger'. So I just kept screaming those words, swinging back and forth and crying."

Following a variety of small roles in films and the theatre, she got her big break in 1959 in John Gielgud's production of Much Ado About Nothing on Broadway.

New strides for black actor

Scott's World

By Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lou Gossett Jr., who won an Emmy for his performance as Fiddler in Roots, believes he is making black acting history with the lead role in a new hour-long television series.

Gossett will star in The Lazarus Syndrome next season for ABC, playing the chief of surgery in a large metropolitan hospital.

The show is a first in which a black actor will be featured in a non-action adventure (i.e. cops and robbers) dramatic series.

The show also breaks new ground it that no racial references are made in dialogue or story line — at least in the first three scripts filmed so far — to the fact that Dr. MacArthur St. Clair is a black man.

"The doctor I play is not a macho figure. At least, not in the stereotypical sense of black heroes in past TV series," said Gossett.

"I accepted the role because it doesn't have a black onus. The stories are about a surgeon and involve the hospital drama, not the man's color.

"I see the series as making history. It is the inclusion of black men and women into the mainstream of American society on a non-racial basis. It's an important step forward."

Originally, the Blinn-Thorpe production was patterned for a white doctor named Vitale. When Gossett was considered for the role, the producers considered tailoring the doctor to fit the actor.

Gossett objected, saying, "Just change his name and leave the scripts alone."

Gossett is a tall, lean, athletic man of considerable charm and dignity. His shaved head gives him a strong, almost menacing appearance. A former Brooklyn high school basketball flash, he moves gracefully.

His own personal roots are in the Caribbean. He speaks thoughtfully and slowly without a trace of Brooklyn accent.

Gossett comes to his role of Dr. St. Clair better equipped to play a doctor than most actors. He was a pre-med student at New York University before turning to acting with a role in Take A Giant Step on Broadway.

He moved on to The Desk Set with Shirley Booth and such other Broadway hits as A Raisin In The Sun, Golden Boy and My Sweet Charlie.

His movies include The Landlord, The Skin Game and The Choirboys in addition to more than 50 TV shows.

"I was offered the part of a black congressman in a TV pilot," Gossett said. "The real Washington Black Caucus objected to the show. It was a comedy and I personally didn't want to play the black congressman for laughs.

"That sort of comedy is fine for black performers because it provides jobs. But personally I think the genre should be balanced out by other series like The Lazarus Syndrome.

"Not long ago I was asked to star in a spin-off of The Rockford Files with Isaac Hayes. We made the pilot but it wasn't right for me. At that time I was holding off, hoping to continue along feature films.

"I was given an opportunity to star in the pilot of For Heaven's Sake, a TV series based on Warren Beatty's hit movie, Heaven Can Wait. I was to be a basketball player instead of a football player. I turned it down for the show we're doing now."

No one is more aware than Gossett that if The Lazarus Syndrome is to succeed in the ratings it must draw a large viewing audience among whites. It cannot survive with predominantly black viewers.

Gossett is optimistic following screenings of the pilot which was shown to ABC affiliate stations along the network.

"It was highly regarded, especially in the South," he said. "They've made great strides down there. The races are making a go of it.

"Another key to the success of the show is the relationship of St. Clair to his partner, the hospital administrator played by Ronald Hunter, a white actor. It is a very real relationship. They don't make racial jokes.

"St. Clair is no miracle worker. He's a well-rounded man with shortcomings. He makes mistakes. And he's not only involved in the hospital. He has a wife and a child and we see those elements of his life, too.

"The show is a breath of fresh air. It breaks a lot of cliches both for doctors and blacks.

"Dr. St. Clair and I have some qualities in common. I have more humor than he does but we share a sense of humanity. We're both athletic and jog three miles several times a week.

"My pre-med studies help, although we have a technical adviser on the set."

Gossett has formed his own production company, Satie Productions, named for his 5-year-old son. This winter the organization will produce Don't Look Back, a biography of the legendary baseball pitcher Satchel Paige.

"I was a pitcher in semi-pro ball," Gossett said, "and Satchel will be working with us on the film. It's one of the most exciting projects I've tackled yet."

Carr took secret to grave

Shortly before she died, Emily Carr asked one of her friends to bury her personal belongings under one of the trees she had painted in Beacon Hill Park.

The were buried somewhere near Cameron bandshell and might be there still.

Tuesday night the National Film Board will show at the bandshell an hour-long documentary on Victoria's most famous painter called Emily Carr — Growing Pains.

Admission is free and the films start at 9 p.m.

Auditor deflects barbs

Times Staff

Auditor-General Erma Morrison deftly deflected pointed political questions Wednesday as Socred and NDP MLAs tried to get her to apportion blame for poor government accounting practices.

For the first time in B.C. history, an auditor-general appeared before the legislature's two-party public accounts committee giving MLAs an opportunity to delve further into her department's findings.

Most of the 13 MLAs seemed genuinely interested in having Morrison amplify and clarify areas of poor accounting practices she and her staff discovered in their year-long examination of the government books.

But a couple tried to score political points.

However, they were quickly short-circuited by Morrison, who insists her office is strictly non-partisan.

Graham Lea (NDP-Prince Rupert) noting that Morrison's report recommends the huge debt of B.C. Rail be included on the government books because the railway will never be able to pay it off, asked Morrison if that means the NDP actually inherited a large debt when it assumed power in 1972.

But Morrison wouldn't bite. She told Lea the debt of the primary borrower (the B.C. Rail Crown corp.) should be passed onto the guarantor — the provincial government — only when it becomes obvious the primary borrower is not able to meet its obligation.

She wouldn't say when that moment occurred for B.C. Rail.

Labor Minister Allan Williams later tried to pin Morrison down on when the poor accounting practices she is so critical of occurred.

Williams wanted to know when specific directives from ministers were issued that certain accounting practices should be followed.

Williams was obviously trying to determine if any of the poor accounting practices began under the NDP government of 1972 to 1975.

But Morrison told the committee her department was instructed to look into the government accounting procedures of the 1977-78 fiscal year.

During those investigations, her staff found cases of unusual accounting methods that had gone on for some time simply because they had always been done that way.

But she wouldn't give precise dates of any such policies.

Morrison was hired as the province's first auditor-general in September, 1977, and filed her first annual report on the 1977-78 fiscal year in April.

Her study uncovered numerous instances of sloppy accounting practices in various ministries including one case described as an observer as resembling the accounting procedures of a frontier-era drygoods store.

A $5,000 bearer bond which went missing in the mines and petroleum resources ministry was eventually found in an envelope in the bottom drawer of a cash box, Morrison told the committee.

Stu Leggatt (NDP-Coquitlam Moody) asked Morrison if the six-month delay in billing forest companies for $26 million in stumpage fees means a loss of interest to the province.

Morrison agreed the interest would be lost but said there was no recommendation to try and recover the loss because it was the fault of government for delaying the billing, not the fault of the forest companies.

Other members of the committee wanted assurances from Morrison that she will monitor the weak areas she discovered last year and report on them for her next report.

"Any item raised here (in the first report) will be followed up in all cases," she said.

"If there are no changes I will make further and stronger comment next time," she added.

Plunge kills 28

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — A bus plunged into a rural ravine 30 kilometres northeast of Port-au-Prince Tuesday night, killing 28 persons and injuring 13, police reported.

Bill seeks to end legal overlapping

A bill designed to unify and co-ordinate existing legal services in B.C. was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

Gardom said the act amalgamates resources of the Legal Services Commission and the Legal Aid Society into the new Legal Services Society.

The commission, established in 1975, and the Legal Aid Society, created 30 years ago, both provided legal service and advice to persons unable to afford it. The commission also was responsible for distribution of money for legal services and legal education programs.

Gardom said the new society will end any overlapping between the two groups.

Needle, not noose lobbied by Munro

Esquimalt-Saanich Tory MP Donald Munro is pressing for a return of the death penalty with lethal injections instead of hanging for convicted killers.

Munro said Wednesday he will sponsor a private member's bill to that effect and is now lobbying for wider support among MPs.

The House of Commons abolished the death penalty in 1976 by a vote of 130 to 124. Among those voting for abolition was Prime Minister Joe Clark, then leader of the opposition.

Clark has said his government will not reintroduce legislation on its own.

Munro said hanging is a barbaric act and said lethal injections would be more humane.

His view is shared by Canadian Police Association president Sgt. Phil Jamieson of Saanich police, a staunch advocate of a return to the death penalty.

Munro said he is convinced the death penalty is necessary for deterrence sake although agreed there is little statistical evidence to support the opinion.

Serve Kiwifruit sliced around a rice pudding mold or as a puree topping

Chinese gooseberries straight from Kiwiland

It's not a bird . . . it's not a polish . . . it is Kiwifruit, sometimes called Chinese gooseberries.

This taste treat is back in the market for another season of good eating from far-off New Zealand.

Kiwifruit is delicious eaten plain . . . in salads, as a garnish for meats and fish . . . in pies and any number of fruit dessert treats.

It's loaded with Vitamin C, low in calories and one of the fruits recommended on the Weight Watchers International diet.

Kiwifruit's unique taste makes you think of strawberries, watermelon and possibly peaches. If you've never tried Kiwifruit, a trip to the market this weekend could be more than just a shopping expedition.

Here are some delicious Kiwifruit recipes that will liven up your summer menu planning:

RICE PUDDING MOLD WITH KIWIFRUIT

8 Kiwi fruit, peeled
1 cup rice
½ cup whipping cream, scalded
1 prepared vanilla pudding
¼ cup cold milk
1 envelope gelatine (your flavor choice)

Cook rice until tender, cool. Pour vanilla pudding into a deep bowl. Dissolve gelatine in cold milk and stir into scalded cream. Cool a bit and stir this into the pudding.

Beat lightly and chill just long enough for mixture to begin to set. Now fold in the cooled rice and pour into oiled mold. Set for several hours in refrigerator.

Unmold on serving plate and garnish with Kiwifruit slices and serve with Kiwifruit puree. Serves six to eight.

KIWIFRUIT PUREE

Peel six very ripe Kiwifruit, add juice of half a lime or lemon and mash with a fork. Drizzle in 1½ teaspoons honey, stirring well. Pile into a server and ladle this fruity puree over the rice pudding mold. (If you like, add a few drops of your favorite liqueur. Curacao or Grand Marnier are nice.)

Rich make most of bargain deals

TORONTO (CP) — The richer you are, the more you tend to snap up bargains like generic products at the grocery store, a survey shows.

Seven out 10 families with incomes of more than $20,000 a year have tried at least one generic — or no-name — product, says the Toronto food-analysis company that conducted the survey.

Robert McClelland, president of OMI Operational Management, Inc., which conducted the survey, said that among families with less than $8,000, only half have tried generic products.

The average generic buyer is probably a woman, under 35 with no children, since 62 per cent of the female shoppers surveyed said they bought no-name products, compared with 50 per cent of the males.

The study included more than 1,500 grocery shoppers from Oshawa, Ont., through Metropolitan Toronto to Niagara Falls, Ont., and examined who buys generics, which products they buy, and which national brands are losing because of the new line.

"Six out of every 10 shoppers are willing to try no-names," McClelland said. "And an astonishingly high percentage are willing to buy them again after trying them."

Manufacturers interviewed thought the products were a passing fad, he said.

Despite the success of generics, McClelland said the major supermarket chains, all of which now have a line of generics, have made the marketing error of neglecting to tell customers they can get their money back if they don't like the product.

Shrimp: often overcooked

Craig Claiborne

If I were to name the one ingredient that is often elaborately overcooked in North American kitchens, it would certainly be shrimp. It is beyond me how any home cook and certainly any professional chef refuses to understand that only the briefest simmering, a minute or two, is all that is needed to keep the texture of shrimp firm and intact.

In addition to requiring so short a cooking time, shrimp happen to be one of the world's great food delicacies and should have a special appeal for those who must — or prefer — to cook in a brief time period.

I can recall several happy midsummer occasions dining on a shrimp feast with family and friends. It was generally out of doors at a table covered with newspapers, with only a hot butter and lemon sauce for dipping the shrimp — steamed with beer and seasoning — after they were peeled.

I have noted before that there are some foods of such excellence and variety of preparation, it is, at times, better to cook more than you will possibly use on one occasion. Leftovers can be sublime and such foresight will save you time. Shrimp are a notable example.

Cooked and left in the shell, shrimp can be prepared in a thousand different ways when cold. From a basic shrimp cocktail with a typical American cocktail sauce (ketchup, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, horseradish and Tabasco sauce) to blending with mayonnaise vinaigrette sauces.

One of the best of these sauces is the one known as remoulade. This sauce incidentally, is not the same as that in Louisiana or New Orleans cooking, which is made with oil, lemon or vinegar, chopped celery and green onions. The classic remoulada has a mayonnaise base and contains chopped small sour pickles, chopped anchovy, capers, parsley and tarragon.

SHRIMP REMOULADE

1½ pounds shrimp cooked in the shell with beer, see recipe.
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon imported mustard
2 teaspoons tarragon vinegar
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 cup peanut, vegetable or corn oil
1 tablespoon finely chopped capers
3 tablespoons finely chopped, drained cornichons (small, imported pickles).
1 tablespoon anchovy paste or chopped flat anchovy fillets
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2 teaspoons chopped fresh tarragon or ½ teaspoon dried
Juice of half a lemon
8 leaves Boston lettuce
2 hard-cooked eggs, peeled and quartered
8 cherry tomatoes

1. Peel and devein the shrimp. Leave whole or cut in half. Set aside.

2. Put the egg yolk into a bowl and add the mustard, vinegar, salt and pepper. Start beating with a wire whisk and gradually add the oil, beating vigorously with the whisk.

3. Squeeze the capers in a clean cloth to extract their liquid. Add capers to mayonnaise. Add the cornichons, parsley and tarragon. Blend well.

4. Put the shrimp in a bowl and sprinkle lemon juice over them. Add the sauce and blend well.

5. Arrange two lettuce leaves on each of four plates. Spoon equal portions of the shrimp on the lettuce. Garnish with hard-cooked eggs and cherry tomatoes.

Yield: 4 servings.

SHRIMP COOKED WITH BEER

1½ pounds shrimp in the shell
2 cloves garlic, peeled
3 whole allspice
½ hot, dried red pepper
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
½ bay leaf
3 sprigs fresh parsley
1 sprig fresh dill
Beer to cover

1. Combine all the ingredients in a heavy kettle and cover closely. Bring to the boil.

2. Let the shrimp simmer two minutes and remove from the heat. Serve hot in the shell, letting each guest peel his own. Serve with individual portions of melted lemon butter (see recipe). Or let cool, peel and use in a salad.

Yield: 4 servings.

LEMON BUTTER

¼ pound butter
Juice of half a lemon
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 clove garlic, unpeeled but lightly crushed.

Heat the butter in a saucepan until quite hot and almost bubbling. Add the remaining ingredients and stir. Serve hot with shrimp steamed in beer.

Yield: About ½ cup.

Try hamming it up with a tasty salad

Pierre Franey

the 60-minute gourmet

There are some precookedfoods that are an absolute boon to anyone who has menu-planning and cooking by the kitchen clock in mind, and one of them is sliced boiled or baked ham.

Generally, the quality is uniform and the meat has been cooked in the simplest manner possible. Plain sliced boiled ham can be transformed in a hundred different ways into main dishes, baked in cheese sauce, gratineed with potatoes or tossed in cold salads for summer.

One of the most interesting salads we've made recently combined cubed boiled ham with cut-up endive, two foods which, cold or hot, complement each other. The crispness and slightly sweet-bitter taste of raw endive makes a fine foil for the texture and flavor of the ham.

The tie that binds the two is a ravigote sauce in the classic French tradition. It consists basically of a vinaigrette sauce (vinegar and oil) plus capers, parsley, chopped onion, chives and tarragon. To prepare the dish, fresh herbs are worth searching for.

A boiled ham and endive ravigote salad makes and excellent warm-weather dish and can be served as a light repast — lunch, for example - with hot French bread. Or it can be served with one or more salads, such as sliced tomato or cucumber.

One of my favorite salads, for summer or winter, is a salade pommes vin blanc, which is to say a potato salad with a white wine dressing. This salad is traditionally served lukewarm and contains, in addition to the potatoes and a light sprinkling of white wine, just oil, salt and pepper.

HAM AND ENDIVE SALAD

The ham and endive:
1¼ pounds thinly sliced boiled ham
2 large heads of Belgian endive

The sauce ravigote:
2 teaspoons imported mustard
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
½ cup peanut, vegetable corn oil
1 tablespoon drained capers finely chopped fresh parsley finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh chives
1 tablespoon finely ched fresh tarragon.

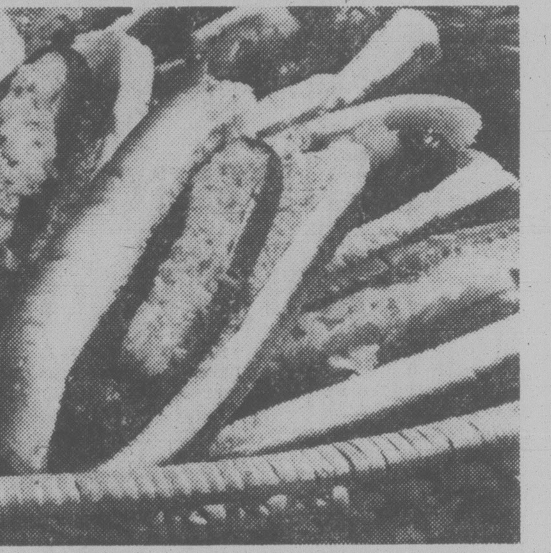
1. Stack the ham slices on a flat surface and cut into helf-inch squares. There should be almost four cups. Put the ham in a bowl.

2. Trim off the base of each endive. Pull off and reserve about 12 of the best outside endive leaves, to be used as garnish. Chop the remaining endive coarsely. There should be about 2½ cups. Add this to the ham.

3. Put the mustard, vinegar, salt and pepper in a small mixing bowl. Add the oil gradually, stirring vigorously with a wire whisk. Add the capers, parsley, onion, chives and tarragon. Blend well.

4. Pour the sauce over the ham mixture and stir to blend. Serve immediately.

Yield: 4 servings.



Zesty hot dogs great on grill

Summertime is barbecue time and what's a barbecue without a hot dog?

For a hot dog which will please the whole family, prepare a zesty cheese stuffing to enhance the good wiener flavor. Plan on seconds and thirds because this flavor combination will surely please.

Wieners are a good source of protein and a wise choice for lunch, supper or snack. But serve them at the peak of freshness — within a few days of purchase; once opened, use them up quickly. Freezing wieners is not recommended because of flavor deterioration. However, if they must be frozen, use them within four weeks. Since wieners are fully cooked, they need only to be heated — on the barbecue, in skillet or in boiling water (heat, don't boil them).

Zesty wieners are delicious when grilled on the barbecue, and served in a mustard-buttered bun — or placed in the bun and heated in oven or barbecue. Serve with relishes, fresh fruit and cookies.

ZESTY WIENERS

1 pound wieners
4 ounce package cream cheese
¼ cup finely chopped celery
2 teaspoons chopped fresh dill or
1 teaspoon dried dill
¼ cup soft butter
½ teaspoon dry mustard
hot dog buns

Combine cheese, celery and dill. Slit wieners lengthwise, not quite through — and fill with the cheese mixture. Combine butter and mustard. Spread on buns. Place stuffed wieners in buns. Heat at 350° F. about 12-15 minutes.

SUPER SCALLOP
4-6 servings

1 pound wieners, quartered diagonally
6 ounce package scalloped potatoes
2 cups boiling water
¾ cup sour cream
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
chopped fresh dill or parsley

Prepare potatoes as directed on package, using 2 cups boiling water. Bake, covered, at 350° F. for 25 minutes. Remove from oven. Stir in sour cream, cheese and wieners. Bake 20 minutes longer. Sprinkle with dill or parsley to serve.

‘Mama did forgive’

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My younger sister passed away last month and I found a yellowed clipping of your column in her Bible. Here it is:

“DEAR ABBY: Will you please remind your readers to look after parents who are too old to look after themselves? Old parents need all their children. It’s not always easy to cope with aging parents, but we weren’t easy to cope with when they were raising US, either. We OWE it to them. I just wish someone had reminded ME of these things when Mama was still alive. It’s too late now, and I haven’t had a decent night’s sleep since she died three months ago.

”I knew she had a good home with my sister, so that was that. Why didn’t I take her for a few weeks, or even for Sunday dinner, or for a little drive? I never had time for her, yet I had time for others and anything else I wanted to do. A change of scenery or even a meal at my home would have meant so much to her, but I was too busy. Oh, I had plenty of excuses.

“I suppose the only one in our large family who is sleeping is my sister who took Mama to live with her. I’ve tried to ease my conscience by telling myself that I wasn’t really ashamed of Mama like my brothers were. Or that I wasn’t cheap, like another sister. I DID buy her things (which she never really needed or enjoyed much.) But it’s too late now. I hope Mama forgives me.

“CAN’T SLEEP”

Abby, CAN’T SLEEP was my sister. I’m the one Mama went to live with.

It’s too late for me to tell my sister that Mama did forgive her. Mothers always do. But I hope you will print this again for those for whom it’s not too late.

THE OLDEST

DEAR ABBY: Do you want to do the hospital volunteers of the world a big favor? Please tell your readers that mail addressed to Buzz Jackson, Skip Jones or Tootsie Brown will probably not be delivered to patients in the hospital.

Yesterday I looked for an ‘‘Al’’ Johnson and found none. I did find a Henry Alvin Johnson, however. I later learned that the patient always called himself “Al” so he wouldn’t be confused with his father who was called Henry.

So, please, Abby, print this. I could cry every time I see a stack of mail that can’t be delivered because it is addressed improperly. And wouldn’t you know they don’t put a return address on the envelope, either!

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I’ll pass the word. I hope it helps.

‘Milky’ olive oil not rancid

Dr. Jean Mayer
Dr. Johanna Dwyer

and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

Q: The last time I went to buy olive oil at my local market I noticed that all the bottles of one brand had a milky residue. Is this a type of spoilage?

A: No. As you know, fats are made up chemically of two types of substances: fatty acids and an alcohol called glycerol. The fatty acids are classified into three groups, depending on how much hydrogen they contain. Those which contain all the hydrogen they can hold are referred to as saturated fatty acids. (Fats containing mostly saturated fatty acids are usually solid at room temperature.) Those with the potential for adding one hydrogen atom are called monounsaturtes. And those which could take on two or more atoms of hydrogen are called polyunsaturates.

Olive oil contains mostly monounsaturates. However, it also contains varying but considerable amounts of saturated fatty acids, too. And thus what you are seeing are crystals of saturated fatty acids which have settled out to the bottom of the bottom of the bottle.

In some cases this phenomenon may have occurred because the oil was exposed to a rather cool temperature during shipment and storage. But it can also occur as the olive oil sits on the shelf. In any case, you will find that when the oil is heated, the cloudiness will disappear.

Q: I am an elderly woman living alone. My appetite is really rather poor, and a friend has suggested that I might benefit from taking a thiamin supplement. Is this a good idea?

A: In a word, no — not unless you are suffering from a thiamin deficiency. It is true that loss of appetite, or anorexia, is indeed one of the early symptoms of thiamin deficiency. In fact, among a group of volunteers in whom thiamin deficiency was experimentally induced, anorexia and vomiting were the first signs of deficiency to appear.

It is also true that when a deficiency is treated with thiamin supplements appetite does return. But as with other vitamins, a supplement is effective only if a deficiency exists in the first place.

We should point out that thiamin is essential for the metabolism of carbohydrate. It also is one of the water-soluable vitamins the body does not store to any great extent. Moreover, there are indications that thiamin requirements of older individuals are relatively high. As a result, it is important that you make sure that your diet contains plenty of thiamin-rich foods every day.

Fortunately, thiamin is found in a wide variety of foods. In the average American diet about 35 per cent comes from whole grain and enriched cereal products. Among the meats, pork is an outstanding source. But other meats as well as poultry and fish also provide important amounts.

On the average, these foods alone account for another 30 per cent of the daily intake. Fruits and vegetables, dried legumes and nuts contain thiamin and even dairy products provide a small amount.

In other words, the best way to get enough thiamin is simply to eat a varied diet. Incidentally, if you happen to like the taste of it, dried brewers’ yeast is a superior source.

Q: I am an avid reader of nutrition-labelling information. There are times, however, when I am frustrated by the way the information is presented. For example, a serving of pasta is usually described as two ounces, dry weight. I really have no idea what volume of cooked pasta that represents. Can you give me some idea?

A: While we understand your frustration, the truth is that expressing a serving in dry weight is really far more accurate, since the length of cooking has a considerable effect on the caloric content of a given volume.

According to average values available in food composition tables, pasta cooked to an “al dente” stage — or until just barely done and therefore more dense — contains about 190 calories per cup. On the other hand, pasta cooked to a tender stage absorbs more water and contains on the average only 155 calories per cup. Thus, two ounces of dry pasta might be anywhere from slightly over a cup to a cup and a third, depending on how long it is cooked.

The same amount of enriched pasta, which is often referred to as “just starch,” would provide over a third of the day’s thiamine requirement, 15 per cent of the day’s riboflavin, 20 per cent of the day’s niacin and 10 per cent of the iron. It will also provide 10 per cent of a day’s protein requirement, protein which the body can use quite efficiently as long as the meal also contains just a small amount of high-quality protein, possibly from meat sauce or grated cheese over the spaghetti.

Stroke patient annoyed because he can’t speak

YOUR HEALTH

by L. L. Coleman, MD

My father had a stroke six months ago. They said he would never recover, but he is a courageous man. Now, except for the fact that he can’t walk, his biggest problem is that he can’t speak. This seems to bother him most. It’s frustrating to him and he becomes irritable when he can’t get out the words he’s trying to pronounce. Is there any hope that he will eventually regain his speech? — Mr. H. W.

DEAR MR. W.:

Many patients who have suffered a stroke now are rehabilitated and can again function in many serviceable ways. The science of rehabilitation has advanced enormously in recent years. In fact, rehabilitation starts almost immediately, once the patient is able to be treated by any of the remarkable methods that are now available. The result is that many patients who might otherwise have been bedridden and incapacitated are able to function in dignified and constructive ways.

A stroke, or “apoplexy”, is the common name for a sudden interference with the normal blood supply to the brain. The blockage of an artery which carries life-sustaining oxygen to the brain can be caused by a clot (thrombus), the narrowing of the artery due to arteriosclerosis or a hemorrhage in a blood vessel.

The severity of a stroke depends entirely on the size of the blood vessel that is affected. Interference with the blood supply of a large artery will affect a larger portion of the brain and thus may be accompanied by more diffuse symptoms. When a small blood vessel is affected, the symptoms and signs may be less marked and less severe.

In some instances, a spasm of the blood vessel temporarily interferes with the blood vessel. When the spasm relaxes, the blood flow returns to normal and the symptoms dissappear.

The fact that your father’s speech impediment has lasted as long as it has is highly suggestive of a protracted, or even permanent, damage to the portion of the brain responsible for speech.

There now are some medicines which are used to dilate the blood vessels, hoping that there may be some amelioration of the speech impediment.

Speech therapists have, in some instances, been able to do quite remarkable things for people who are so affected. In conjunction with psychological support, the frustration can sometimes be modified.

We have passed through a phase of medicine that has brought greater hope for the victims.

Constitutional conference shelved for fiscal parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark does not plan a federal-provincial constitutional conference this autumn despite a campaign promise to convene one shortly after the May 22 election.

Faced with a gloomy economic future, the government has decided to honor another of its election promises and call a federal-provincial economic conference before the year's end.

Senator Robert de Cotret, economic development minister, told reporters the conference would include both levels of government and representatives from such interest groups as business and labor.

Exact timing of the conference is uncertain but is to be discussed when the inner cabinet meets next month in Jasper, Alta., the Clark aide said.

Bill Jarvis, federal-provincial relations minister, plans to meet his provincial counterparts individually this summer.

Federal officials have indicated Clark is still committed to calling some type of constitutional conference before the Quebec referendum planned for next spring.

Since the May federal election, the national unity issue which had preoccupied the former Liberal government since the Nov. 15, 1976, Parti Quebecois election victory has all but died on Parliament Hill.

The Conservatives predicted during the election campaign they could ease federal-provincial tensions by co-operating with the premiers. The style of the former Liberal government was described as confrontative.

Initial meetings between new federal ministers and their Quebec counterparts have so far appeared positive.

Guy Tardif, Quebec municipal affairs minister, left a brief meeting last week with Elmer MacKay, federal minister responsible for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., saying the two levels of government "did more to disentangle problems in the last hour" than in several months of talks with the previous Liberal government.

Blakeney hits MP grain force

Times News Services

REGINA — The federal government is trying to buy time with its appointment of a grain transportation improvement task force, Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney said Wednesday.

Blakeney told a news conference that action rather than further study is needed to improve grain transportation. He said it is unlikely the new task force will find anything not included in recent federal reports.

Conservative MPs Jack Murta, Stan Schellenberger and Bill McKnight Wednesday were appointed a three-man task force to oversee implementation of emergency grain handling programs in Western Canada.

Transport Minister Don Mazankowski said the task force will be "action oriented, rather than a study group."

The task force headed by Murta, will also recommend appointment of a grain transportation co-ordinator and detail his powers and duties, Mazankowski said.

The task force will release an interim report by Aug. 25 and a final report with recommendations by Nov. 30.

HERB GRAY, who was dumped from Pierre Trudeau's cabinet in 1974, will become the Liberals' leading finance spokesman in the next Parliament, party sources say.

Oil taxes to U.S. rising $2

OTTAWA (CP) — The tax on light crude oil exported to the United States will be increased by $2 a barrel effective Aug. 1, bringing the border price to almost $29 a barrel, roughly $25 U.S., the government has announced.

The new rate takes into account higher world prices because of the June 26 increase announced by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries as well as rising transportation charges, Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn said in a press release.

The tax on heavier oils, exported in larger volumes than light crude, has been increased by $3.50 a barrel for Lloydminster, Viking-Kinsella and Wainwright-type blends. The new export charge is $12.75 a barrel.

New rates were also announced for other heavy oils and a range of petroleum products such as motor gasoline and partially processed oil.

CP Air sees $3M loss in new charter rules

OTTAWA (CP) — CP Air stands to lose $3.5 million a year if charter regulations are changed to reduced to 72 hours from seven days the minimum stay requirements for Advanced Booking Charters (ABC) to continental U.S. points, the airline says.

The company said it has calculated that such a reduction will result in a diversion of 15 per cent of the traffic currently carried on CP routes to San Francisco and Los Angeles from Vancouver.

CP Air's comments were in a brief submitted Wednesday to the federal air transport committee, which is holding public meetings to get reaction on some 16 proposals to relax regulations governing domestic and international charters.

CP Air said, however, it supports a reduction in the minimum stay to 72 hours for ABCs to Puerto Rico, Hawaii and the Caribbean.

The airline also expressed concern that some of the proposals could lead to an erosion of the distinction between scheduled and charter services.

"Indeed, CP Air believes that changes of this magnitude will be a significant detriment to the scheduled services available to the public," the brief said.

Air Canada put forward the same argument Tuesday in a brief to the committee.

CP Air also opposed changes which would enable Canadian-originating and foreign-originating charters to make one or two stops in Canada to pick up or set down passengers.

Pyramid power used to brace up Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (UPC) — The four black boxes psychic Alfred Ward has installed in the corners of a pyramid-shaped movie theatre are meant to save Niagara Falls from falling. Or something like that.

Ward, author of the book Pyramid Power, claimed Wednesday to have transformed the 90-foot high movie theatre appropriately call Pyramid Place into a mystic device to prevent the destruction of the famed cataract.

Pat St. John, a Connecticut psychic, predicted earlier this month that a retaining wall above the falls would collapse this Sunday and sink a tour boat occupied by deaf children.

Ward, whose book claims pyramids exert mysterious forces on objects placed inside, said the four black boxes contain a "secret formula" that will produce a "protective mag-neutral field" to prevent the massive rock slide.

If all this sounds weird, so is the reality now worrying geologists.

At first, they discounted St. John's warning after inspecting the falls.

But Friday, a seismic sensor imbedded in the rock at the Terrapin Point viewing area on the falls' American side sounded an alarm.

It indicated a rock shift of at least a quarter inch and raised the possibility that about 300,000 tons of rock could collapse into the Niagara River.

By ignoring safety glasses thousands risk their vision

EDMONTON (CP) — Thousands of workers are risking their vision by ignoring eye protection, a British Columbia optometrist says, adding that governments, companies and even optometrists should share some of the blame.

Dr. Brian Schmidt, a B.C. health department offical, said Wednesday that 50 Alberta workers were among hundreds in Canada who suffered eye damage last year because they refused to wear safety glasses.

Schmidt said uncomfortable, ill-fitting glasses would be a thing of the past if professional optometrists were used in company safety programs. But he said governments and companies are not doing their job.

Only Nova Scotia adopts all Canadian Standards Association (CSA) recommendations. Other provinces are more selective about which recommendations they accept.

For example, eye protection against radiation is not covered by law in Alberta, B.C. and Ontario.

Canada still comes first at talking

OTTAWA (CP) — With 18 billion local telephone calls and more than a billion long distance calls in 1977, Canada has retained its reputation as as one of the most talkative countries in the world, an spokesman for the TransCanada Telephone System said Wednesday.

He said a report on the world's telephone population by American Telegraph and Telephone also shows that in 1978 Canada ranked fourth in the number of telephones-per-person category with 63 of them for every 100 Canadians. Only Switzerland, Sweden and the United States had higher phone densities.

AT&T surveyed 230 countries for the 89-page report which contains tables of data on the number of telephones in the continental areas as well as the world's major cities and the number of calls placed in each country. There are more than 423 million telephones in the world.

Children held in solitary

EDMONTON (CP) — Child-care workers say children at a government-run treatment centre in Edmonton are being confined to small, bare, poorly-ventilated rooms for up to four weeks.

They say residents at Westfield, an institution for disturbed and delinquent children, are put into solitary confinement for minor misbehavior, such as smuggling cigarettes, creating disturbances at the table, failure to do homework, running away or throwing temper tantrums.

The workers, including former and present staff of Westfield, say the rooms where the children are confined are called "thinking rooms" or TRs. They are about three metres by 1.5 metres, with white walls and doors, bars on the window and only mattresses on the floor.

At night, when there are not enough staff to escort children to the washroom, they are given empty milk cartons to urinate in. Some of the children, angry at being confined, urinate into the air registers.

"There's very bad ventilation in the rooms," said Lynn Gallimore, who resigned from Westfield because she did not like the way the institution is being run. "It's dead air and it smells."

Ms. Gallimore and other child-care workers said they have seen children — many of them already disturbed — go through nightmarish experiences in these rooms.

But Westfield director August Frauenfeld, while confirming the use of the thinking rooms, denied that it is brutal treatment. He said their use is to protect violent children, and other children and staff.

He said some of the older children are almost six feet tall and stronger than many male staff members. When these children are out of control, they are a danger.

The bidding:

Assume you're declarer in four spades and West leads the K-A and another diamond. East ruffs and returns a club on which you hopefully play the queen, but West covers with the king and you win the trick with the ace.

You lead a trump and finesse the queen, West discarding a club. Learning that East started with five trumps is enlightening, but while it solves the problem of avoiding a trump loser it does not solve the problem of avoiding your club loser.

Thus, if you played a heart to the queen and took a second trump finesse, followed by a heart to the ace and another trump finesse, you'd drop East's king by now playing the ace of spades but you'd still have to lose a club and go down one.

It can't be right to arrive at such a dead end without trying to do something about it. So you start looking for a different line of play that offers you a chance for the contract.

The solution is not hard to find. At trick six you play a low heart to dummy's ten, and when the finesse succeeds you are well on the way to victory.

You take a second trump finesse, return to dummy with a low heart to the queen, and take a third trump finesse. The ace of trumps floors East's king, after which you play your king of hearts to the ace and deposit your club loser on dummy's ten of diamonds.

It's true that you must take what appears to be a foolish first-round heart finesse to make the contract, but you can easily justify the play by saying that desperate circumstances require desperate measures.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, JULY 20
By SIDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on movement, finishing what you start, getting more recognition. Another Aries is in picture. Libra relative could also figure prominently. You get green light to transform idea into action. Highlight versatility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message. Welcome new contacts, fresh approach. Cash flow question will be resolved. You locate "missing link." Surprise gift also is on agenda. Cycle is favorable for initiative, confidence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Highlight individuality, directness. Wear bright colors, spread message, stress initiative, pioneering spirit. Aquarius, Cancer persons figure prominently — so does the number 11. You receive a very unorthodox proposal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Find ways to get access to the media. Your story should be told — you might be representing special group, organization. Initiative and ingenuity make marvelous twin allies. Your call to key person will be favorably received.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on learning who cares, who could not care less. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio persons figure in senario. Wish is fulfilled — you are not likely to be satisfied with current conditions. You express other wishes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be ready for confrontations, "snappy" dialogue, unique message from member of opposite sex. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Accent on career, duty, opening better line of communications with superiors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spotlight on publishing, education, spiritual reevaluation. Taurus, Scorpio and another Libra figure prominently — so does the number 6. Distance, travel, learning where and how to contact key people — these areas dominate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You pinpoint needs, penetrate mystery clouds, learn who has the money and how situation evolved to present course. See as is, not through romantic haze. One who asks you to co-sign is not stable at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get going on production, legalities. Prepare. Get house in order. You get ally, backing but you may surrender some autonomy. Capricorn, Cancer and the number 8 figure prominently. You learn extent of obligation, responsibility.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be more receptive than aggressive. What you need is "coming your way." You get pulse of public. Universal appeal could be keynote. Aries, Libra natives command key roles. You finish a major task — and you'll be in mood to express gratitude to some co-workers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Spotlight on swift decisions, excitement of speculation. You might fall madly in love. You will feel and be attractive. You'll also be lucky — stick with number 1. You get truth about a relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You have legitimate chance to gain greater security. Teach, learn, follow through on hunch, be receptive to Cancer, Leo, Aquarius natives. You regain sense of direction. One who aided you in past is again available for "consultation."

IF JULY 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, prescient, capable of knowing — in advance — when something of importance is to occur. Cancer, Capricorn persons play key roles in your life. September could be your most memorable month of 1979, a year which features production, challenge, responsibility, intensified relationship, added prestige, advancement and more money. If single, marriage could be high on agenda. If married, an addition to family is not unlikely. Married or single, you invest, display talent as a "capitalist." You are moody, impressionable, fond of antiques and a great bargain hunter. You store food, prepare for proverbial rainy day and you are fiercely loyal to a cause and family. In August, you might be involved in clandestine, romantic adventure.

It's walnut time again

GARDENING

Jack Beastall

A regular column for the end of July is the pickling of walnuts. Since everything depends on the condition of the nuts we are jumping the gun this year.

For success in pickling the green nuts must be gathered before there is any sign of hardening, which normally becomes evident by mid-July or a week after, although it can vary over three weeks according to the season.

It is necessary to knock some nuts off the tree with a long pole and test them for softness. If they are not soft all over they are unfit for pickling.

PREPARING GREEN WALNUTS

After gathering, wash nuts several times in cold water.

Cover the table with a thick pad of newspapers and wear rubber gloves, because the nuts have to be pricked and will exude a juice which badly stains everything it touches, including the skin of humans.

A long steel knitting needle, a thin ice pick, or a two-tined meat fork, can be used for pricking.

Each nut is pricked all over. Keep the pricked nuts on the thick pad of paper, not on a board, table, or any surface that can be damaged by the stain.

When all the nuts have been pricked they can go into the brine which has been prepared in advance.

BRINE

First boil sufficient water to cover the quantity of nuts on hand. Allow water to cool. To each 2 quarts of cooled water add one-half pound of common salt. Pour into a stone crock; do not use metal or plastic containers.

Put the pricked nuts into the brine, cover with a lid, and leave for five days.

BLACKENING

A tray or board is needed to spread the nuts in sunshine to blacken. A piece of beading tacked around an old piece of three-ply will do; there is no longer any juice to cause stains, but the salt will damage metal or painted surfaces.

Remove nuts from brine and drain well. Spread on tray (or trays) and expose to full sunlight until every portion of each nut is uniformly black. Space the nuts and turn frequently.

Strong sun on a hot day may blacken the nuts in eight hours, or the treatment may have to be continued on several days, bringing the trays indoors to a warm spot over night.

When the nuts are thoroughly black all over, pack into quart sealers, preferably those with glass covers, and fill the jars with spiced vinegar.

SPICED VINEGAR

To each quart of malt vinegar in an enamel saucepan, add one ounce of allspice, pinch cayenne pepper, two cloves, a small piece of mace. Some cooks prefer to put the spices in a muslin or cheesecloth bag for easy removal, others claim more flavor from loose spices.

Bring vinegar to boil, strain off spices (or remove bag), allow to cool before pouring over the nuts in the sealers.

The acid in the vinegar will corrode metals and damage many plastics.

For sealers with metal screw-on lids use a piece of wax paper between the lid and the vinegar. With the two-piece metal seals dip the lid-plate in hot paro-wax to give it a protective covering.

If the temptation is great the nuts may be sampled after four to six weeks, but the flavor will be greatly improved when the sealers are stored in a dark cool place for six months.

Thanksgiving would be a good time for a test; by Christmas they should be perfect.

VETERAN PRINTERS received gifts on their retirement from Victoria Press Ltd. Wednesday. They are, from left, Barrie Delmars, Jack Christie, George Gunniss, Roy Fawcus and Bill Richardson. All have long-term careers with the company and three started in the 1930s. Delmars joined Vic Press in 1933 while Gunniss and Richardson arrived in 1938. General manager Jack Melville made the presentations.

Before the judge

A 22-year-old man who pleaded guilty to armed robbery was jailed for four years by Judge Fred Green in provincial court on Wednesday.

Keith Rodney Simonson, no fixed address, held up the McGill and Orme pharmacy at 1201 Douglas about 1:15 p.m. June 30.

Simonson pulled a 10½-inch knife on clerk Margaret Ramsay before scooping up drugs valued at $230.

A city policeman spotted Simonson sitting on a B.C. Hydro bus across the street from the pharmacy. When the officer boarded the bus from the front, Simonson ran out the rear door but was grabbed after a short chase by another officer. A bag containing the drugs was recovered.

Defence lawyer Barry Mah Ming told the court July 3 that Simonson had only been in Victoria since June 22 and was believed to be on parole.

Green also imposed a four-month, concurrent sentence for escaping custody.

Simonson ran away from his guard July 1 while in the Law Courts building to appear before a justice of the peace on the robbery charge. He was caught before he got out of the building.

Judge Blake Allan jailed two 20-year-olds involved in a ruckus last December at a downtown teen disco.

Darcy Blake Lapensee, 2797 Cedar Hill, and Garnet Matthew St. James, 477 Lampson, were found guilty of common assault against the disco owner and causing a disturbance by fighting.

Lapensee was given a 60-day term for the assault and a concurrent, 30-day sentence for causing the disturbance.

St. James received 30-day, concurrent sentences on both charges.

The court was told the men had been in Dancer's Teen Disco, 821 Fisgard, on Dec. 21, were caught drinking beer which they brought into the disco, and requested to leave.

They left but St. James tried to re-enter to speak with a friend and was refused entry. A scuffle ensued with the disco operator, whose shirt was ripped and watch torn off and damaged. Lapensee then broke a beer bottle and went after the owner with it.

Allan placed both on 12 months probation and ordered them to pay for damages.

A 21-year-old man who had three previous convictions for drinking-driving offences was given 30 days in jail terms by Judge William Ostler.

Raymond Clayton Nixon, 455 Carson, pleaded guilty to refusing a breath test demand and driving while under suspension. Crown counsel Ken Salt entered a stay of proceedings on a charge of impaired driving.

Salt said Nixon was stopped during a BATvan roadblock July 7 at Sidney and was extremely uncooperative, sometimes violent.

Nixon was convicted of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 Aug. 30, 1977; April 27, 1978; and Jan. 22, 1979, and received fines of $400, $500 and $700, respectively.

Ostler gave Nixon 20 days for the refusal, 10 more days for driving under suspension, placed him on two years probation and ordered him to accept Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society counselling as prescribed.

Ostler levied the maximum $500 fine on 22-year-old Barry John Alexander Hermann, 625 Constance, after he pleaded guilty to dangerous driving April 25 in Colwood.

Salt said Hermann was involved in a single-car accident in the 4400-block Sooke Road, his vehicle ending up upside down. The mishap occurred about 5:20 p.m. when traffic was heavy with homeward-bound motorists. Witnesses told police Hermann passed several vehicles at high speed along the Dewdney Flats stretch and nearly collided with oncoming cars on two occasions before he lost control at a curve.

Hermann was convicted Jan. 22 of impaired driving and was fined $400.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Kenneth Richard Peter Ward, 24, of 780 Revilo Place, $600; Betty Jane Williams, also known as Betty Jane Church, 52, of 1261 Goldstream, $500; William Allen Seigler, 32, of 6463 College, $500; James Brian McWilliams, 25, of Edmonton, $500; Terry David Mandam, 30, of 710 Miller, $450; and Dwayne Wallace Matear, 18, of 988 Monterey, $450.

Ship funds asked

Environment Minister Rafe Mair has appealed to the federal government to continue funding for weather ships operating off the west coast.

Mair says in a message to Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens and Environment Minister John Fraser it is absolutely imperative that the weather reporting service to maritime clients in B.C. be maintained and improved.

The former Liberal government had been considering cutting off funds for the weather ships as an austerity measure.

Mair said he has been advised that the treasury board will be considering the funding of the weather ships this week.

Highway moved for Marigold

Dissidents fight

Dissident members of the Marigold Housing Co-operative Association are seeking an injunction to quash a special meeting called by the board of directors about operation of the co-op.

Ernest Blow, who circulated a petition demanding the removal of the nine-member board of directors and manager William McElroy, is challenging both the timing and agenda of the July 30 meeting.

The agenda includes a vote of confidence in the board followed by a discussion on Blow's petition and a special resolution expelling Blow and another petition signer for actions "detrimental to the co-operative."

Blow, a 73-year-old former pilot and flying instructor, said under the co-operative's bylaws, the board is legally bound to call a general membership meeting when petitioned to do so by 20 per cent or more of the members. Eighteen of the 86 members of the co-op signed the petition.

Blow said, however, discussions must be limited to the matters that gave rise to the petition.

He said that in retaliation he's called a special meeting of the membership for Aug. 8.

The dissident group is upset over planned increases in their monthly assessments. In particular they are concerned that welfare tenants are being charged higher assessments than low-income wage earners.

Preliminary drawings for the McKenzie Avenue extension have been radically altered to shift the planned four-lane highway 100 feet away from the edge of an 86-unit housing development.

An earlier set of drawings set the $2.4 million link between the Trans-Canada and Pat Bay highways 25 feet from the Marigold Housing Co-operative.

Highways planners showed the new plans to Marigold co-op vice-president Daniela Gauvin and Saanich alderman Fred Severson Wednesday afternoon during an in-camera meeting.

Severson said today the meeting was closed because the drawings require property purchases that have not yet been negotiated with the land owners.

A highways spokesman said Wednesday design consultants are still working on the project and won't come up with a final plan for at least a month.

A number of properties will have to be purchased and if negotiations go smoothly construction could start this year.

There is no way of knowing at this stage how many properties will eventually have to be taken, the spokesman said.

Gauvin said she is delighted with the new drawings, even though they are preliminary.

The ministry didn't give the co-op any guarantees, but Gauvin said she is satisfied planners are working hard to move the highway as far away as possible from the co-operative.

Marigold was built three years ago and houses about 200 people, including a large number of small children.

The new preliminary plans put the highway down a steep embankment and provide a buffer zone of trees between it and the co-op.

The combination of trees and the low level of the highway should deaden traffic noise, the spokesman said.

Gauvin said highways officials promised to hold another meeting next week when they will provide more information about the new route.

Also at the meeting Wednesday was a representative from the McKenzie school parent-teacher association and Saanich municipal planner Ken Rainsberry.

Council recently approved the cost-sharing of the first stage of construction, provided it also approves the final design.

The municipality's share of the project is $200,000 for sidewalks and streetlights.

The first stage extends McKenzie to four lanes between the Pat Bay and Trans-Canada highways.

Government workers still expect strike

The B.C. Government Employees Union is still talking strike even though progress is being made in contract talks on a number of minor issues.

Union and management met this week, settling 32 non-monetary matters and sending hours-of-work problems to a sub-committee.

The one contentious issue — money — was not discussed.

Jackie Koroscil, the assistant director of membership services, says the union expects a strike because of what the government has offered other groups.

The professional group has been offered two or three per cent, the hospitals five, and ambulance drivers five.

"They are not speaking in a realistic way about the loss people took under the anti-inflation guidelines. Nor about the fact that the cost of living will go up eight or nine per cent."

City tot drowns

The 2½-year-old daughter of a Victoria couple drowned Tuesday night in the backyard swimming pool of friends they were visiting near Kelowna.

RCMP identified the victim as Andrea Helen Cody, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Michael Cody, 1575 Thelma Place.

Saanich CUPE voting again

Saanich municipal workers will vote again tonight after a 50-50 split Wednesday left them with no decision on a contract settlement.

Four other locals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees have already approved a tentative settlement.

The Saanich workers are unhappy with a clause in the agreement which removes their right to take the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association to arbitration over last year's cost of living clause.

Saanich local president Maureen Nuttall expects a higher turnout at tonight's meeting but would not predict the outcome.

If the Saanich local turns down the settlement, the CUPE Joint Negotiating Council will meet again.

But the JNC is a voluntary organisation and the other locals could still settle.

The GVLRA votes on the settlement this afternoon. The committee has reccomended adoption.

Even if the CUPE locals settle, Victoria city hall could be behind picket lines.

Lineman and electricians, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, have voted 14-1 to strike.

Cass to run again

Former Saanich alderman Ian Cass confirmed today he will seek an aldermanic seat in Saanich in November.

"If my personal situation is unchanged the answer is yes," said Cass, who lost his Saanich seat last fall after two years as alderman.

Planning is a big issue, according to Cass, who said he is totally disenchanted with the community plan.

"It is so compromised and produced in a vague and bland fashion as not to offend anybody."

Cass, who is a member of the advisory planning commission, said he opposes development of any more shopping centres in Saanich.

The APC approved a major complex at Tillicum and there is no need for the Broadmead shopping centre proposal to go ahead, he said.

4-H Club awards

A total of 13 scholarships have been awarded to 4-H Club members from Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Tarsame Cheema, of the Saanich Holstein Calf Club, won the Canadian National Exhibition Scholarship of $800 while Nancy Williams of the South Saanich Home Arts Club and the Saanich Goat and Fodder Club, received the $500 B.C. Fairs scholarship.

Other Vancouver Island winners were Kathleen Tuckey, of Duncan, and Suzanne Janssen, of Cowichan Station, who each got $250 Bill Alendal Scholarships.

Jolanda M. Van Jaarsveld, of Duncan, took one of the three Norgan Foundation followships valued at $250.

Phyllis Delamere, of Brentwood Bay, won one of the three Buckerfield scholarships valued at $250.

Auto workers ask gov't subsidy

DETROIT (AP). — The United Auto Workers union is asking the United States government to buy a piece of struggling Chrysler Corp. to keep it in business as a full-line manufacturer.

In another unprecedented move, UAW President Douglas Fraser told Chrysler it will not be considered as a strike target when one is selected about two weeks before the Sept. 14 contract deadline.

Fraser suggested the government action, unprecedented in peacetime, Wednesday at the opening of negotiations for a new contract covering 124,000 workers in the United States and Canada — 15,000 of them on indefinite layoff.

"Our game plan is to save jobs of Chrysler workers," Fraser said. "If somebody has another way, be my guest, and we'll withdraw it."

He said the government's interest in the company should be big enough "to keep Chrysler Corp. a viable corporation."

Chrysler, meanwhile, announced it will delay 1980-model production and indefinitely lay off 4,200 more workers at Michigan plants, bringing the number of Chrysler workers idle to almost 20,000.

Industry estimates put the unsold new car inventory at the No. 3 auto-maker at 98 days. An inventory in the 60-day range is considered desirable.

There was no comment from Chrysler on Fraser's government bailout suggestion, but a competitor and a financial analyst said it was not the best idea they'd heard.

"It would be General Motors' opinion that the government could best help Chrysler by reducing the existing regulatory load," said GM spokesman Cliff Merriott.

"Chrysler is far more capable of saving itself than the United States government is," said Arvid Jouppi of John Muir and Co.

There was also no immediate reaction from the federal government. Fraser said he raised the idea with Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal at Camp David last week and thought he was "sympathetic."

Chrysler, the country's 10th largest industrial corporation, lost $205 million on sales of $13.6 billion last year, another $54 million in the first three months of this year and expects to report another large loss for the second quarter. Top company officers have said they do not expect an upturn until 1981.

Bloody excesses of Amin detailed

MONROVIA, Liberia (Reuter) — The Organization of African Unity has heard a denunciation of fugitive Ugandan dictator Idi Amin and vivid descriptions of his bloody excesses.

The descriptions were included in a blunt address to African heads of state by Uganda's new president, Godfrey Binaisa, who referred to Amin as a primitive Fascist, with an "insatiable appetite for the blood of his victims."

"Sometimes he would take the bowels of a man he killed and eat a bit of the liver for breakfast to stop the ghost from haunting him," Binaisa said.

He described in detail how the deposed field marshal had tortured his enemies, saying 500,000 people in Uganda were killed in Amin's eight years of rule.

Binaisa defended Tanzania's intervention to oust Amin and said African leaders should take a lesson from Amin's autocratic rule and speak out in defence of human rights.

"I warn you," he said, "I am going to propose this assembly condemn Equatorial Guinea and the Central African Empire which massacre children while you sit here and do nothing."

He attacked Nigeria and Sudan for criticizing Tanzania's intervention.

The Ugandan president also attacked Libya for sending troops to support Amin's regime in the final weeks of his rule.

Libyan Foreign Minister Abdessalam Tureiki, who intervened earlier in the debate, said the Tanzanian intervention has set a "dangerous precedent in bringing the downfall of a regime."

Crimes return with police

HONOLULU (AP) — Victims, who couldn't report minor crimes during a 3½-day police strike, began ringing the phones in stations throughout Hawaii as the police returned to work.

"Everybody is reporting cars being stolen, vandalism, burglaries, car accidents," said a policeman after he returned to work Wednesday at a station in Kaneohe. "You name it and we got it."

Police returned to duty Wednesday morning, 36 hours after a state judge had issued a back-to-work order. The state public employment board had planned to go into court to seek heavy fines against the police union.

The wildcat strike came in a dispute over a new contract with county governments for the 1,800 policemen.

Federal Mediator Gayle Wineriter, who entered the talks last week at the request of the Hawaii Public Employment Relations Board, was continuing to meet with both sides Wednesday.

The police union had demanded a 10-per-cent wage increase in each year of a two-year contract and a $70 increase in the monthly car allowance. Policemen in Hawaii earn an average annual of $16,833 a year.

ICBC going up for Victorians

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Victoria drivers will be facing higher auto insurance rates when a new bill ending discrimination in setting auto insurance premiums introduced Wednesday is fully in force.

Victoria, with a low accident total that has resulted in low insurance rates, is one of the areas that will face higher premiums under the new system.

In introducing Bill 33, the Automobile Insurance Non-Discrimination Act, Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy said she will not allow one area to benefit because of discrimination against another area.

But full enactment of the new bill is still several years down the road, Premier Bill Bennett said.

First to go will be the discrimination against the under-25 drivers.

That could be in effect by the next insurance year, although Bennett said he is giving the Insurance Corporation of B.C. and private insurers plenty of time to prepare for the changes.

Over the next few years, discrimination based on sex, marital status and area of residence will be struck from the insurance rate books.

Bennett said the regional discrimination will likely be the last to go.

ICBC public information chief Bev Penhall said the knee-jerk reaction that all other premiums will automatically jump when the discriminatory rate structures are ended isn't necessarily true.

Although he admitted the extra revenues generated by the higher fees charged underage drivers and other groups now deemed to be discriminated against amounts to millions of dollars annually, Penhall said ICBC is currently investigating different ways of compensating that loss.

He said private insurance companies are convinced a general rate increase is inevitable, but ICBC isn't so sure. He said he is unable to elaborate because the government-controlled corporation is still examining the alternatives.

But he hinted there could be some surprises when the new rates are established.

McCarthy said the aim of the new bill is to end all classifications of drivers except for one — good and bad drivers.

"We believe that a young, safe driver should pay the same for his car insurance as a mature, safe driver," she said.

Private insurers will be forced to comply with the regulations at the same time as ICBC.

Bennett said the bill is the fulfilment of a long-standing Social Credit promise that like the court system, says no one is presumed guilty until he or she has had an accident.

"There will no longer be guilt by association," the premier said.

Bennett conceded rates in some areas will have to go up, but the increases will be phased in over a period of time.

The decreases for those who benefit from the ending of the discrimination will be more evident, he said.

Bennett compared the rate structure to the rates changed by B.C. Hydro.

Rates are the same all over the province although it is obviously cheaper to service some areas than others.

Like hospitals and schools, all British Columbians share the benefits and spread the costs.

Bennett said he is expecting opposition from some private insurers because the government is going against old, established ways.

Sponsoring cost for Viet family put at $12,000

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Canadians interested in sponsoring a refugee should be prepared for an $8,000 to $10,000 dent in their pocketbooks.

That's the amount Victoria immigration officer Gerald Elliot says a typical family of four may cost sponsors in the first year.

Some church leaders feel the figure could be even higher.

Canon Bob MacRae, rector of St. John's Anglican estimates the average outlay will be about $12,000.

"It's a huge committment," he said in an interview Wednesday, "and one which I don't think many people are aware of."

MacRae, who is Canadian representative on the World Council of Churches's commission on inter-church aid, refugee and world services, said unless the government is prepared to provide more financial help to sponsoring citizens, the plan to admit 50,000 Indochinese refugees over the next two years may not be realized.

The government has agreed to sponsor one refugee for each brought into Canada under private sponsorship.

The total program could cost as much as $200 million jointly shared by the public and private sectors.

MacRae noted the private sponsor signs a binding contract with the federal government promising to pay all living, medical and resettle-

Carter firings begin

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. President Jimmy Carter has accepted the "resignation" of Joseph Califano Jr. as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and replaced him with "team-playing" former black Congresswoman Patricia Harris.

In further evidence of the shakeup that began Tuesday at the cabinet level, administration officials were instructed Wednesday to rate high-level employees on everything from average work hours to ability to get along with other employees.

The Califano resignation — actually a firing — was apparently the first step in the moves that Carter has begun in an attempt to gain public support for his presidency and win re-election in 1980.

Announcement of other resignations is expected to come swiftly.

Ordered by newly-appointed Chief of Staff, Hamilton Jordan, and delivered in sealed packages marked "eyes only," the 30-question forms will be used to evaluate personnel down to the deputy assistant secretary level.

The 30 questions provided an insight into the values that Carter prizes in employees.

Hard work, intelligence, stability and creativity were stressed. So were flexibility, ego, and a willingness to carry out policy with which the official personally disagreed.

For instance, one question asked what percentage of

Parks, woods closed

Logging companies today closed off most of their land and six regional parks have been closed or partially closed because of tinder dry conditions in South Vancouver Island forests.

Logging companies are also confining logging operations to early morning shifts because of the high fire hazards.

While there have been no serious fires on southern Vancouver Island fire protection area, which takes in Jordan River and the Gulf Islands, a two-acre blaze on the south side of Triangle Mountain Wednesday afternoon did cause some concern.

It was only brought under control after four ground tankers and 30 men were brought in to fight it.

Saanich firemen Wednesday evening also extinquished three grass fires believed started by careless smokers.

Regional parks foreman Bert Image said the upland areas of East Sooke Park are closed to the public.

Francis Park, Horth Hill, Mill Hill, Bear Hill and Thetis Lake Park trails, are closed.

Canadians living longer

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians are living longer, but women will continue to outlive men, say the latest mortality tables prepared by Statistics Canada.

The new figures show women's life spans have risen by more than a year to 77.48 years from 76.36 years in the old tables. Men will live an average 70.19 years, up from 69.34 years.

The revisions are based on the 1976 census and deaths between 1975 and 1977. The last statistics were based on the 1971 census and deaths between 1970 and 1972.

Somoza's troops disintegrate, flee

Times News Services

MANAGUA — Triumphant Sandinista guerrillas reached the heart of Managua this morning, stalking national guard holdouts in the bunker compound from which President Anastasio Somoza had ruled his country with an iron hand.

The peal of church bells before dawn proclaimed a Sandinista guerrilla takeover in Managua's outer districts.

Within hours hundreds of fearful national guardsmen were tossing their uniforms aside and scattering from the compound, which served as military headquarters.

Gunfire broke out in the compound area. Some soldiers said the fighting was between guerrillas and the guard, but others said it was the guard firing at deserters.

As the guard disintegrated, its remaining commanders were reported trying to arrange a peaceful and bloodless formal surrender to the Sandinistas, who brought down the Somoza dictatorship earlier this week after a seven-week civil war.

Francisco Urcuyo, named caretaker president by President Anastasio Somoza when he resigned and left Nicaragua Tuesday, resigned himself Wednesday evening and sped to the airport.

The Sandinistas reported he flew by helicopter to a "point somewhere in Guatemala," but this could not be confirmed. Other Somoza men who had not escaped earlier fled to the airport, too.

Guerrilla columns had been reported headed toward Managua late Wednesday from junta-held Leon, and few if any guard checkpoints were reported still along the highway.

Military trucks carrying hundreds of uniformed and armed troops were spotted rolling out of Managua in the direction of the international airport.

It was not known whether they were trying to fly out of Nicaragua or were headed to a central point to surrender their weapons.

"I expect we will be in Managua tomorrow or the next day," junta member Alfonso Robelo told reporters in Leon Wednesday after he and other junta members flew from Costa Rica and declared Nicaragua's second largest city the provisional capital.

In Washington, a group of persons calling themselves Sandinista supporters seized and barricaded themselves inside the chancery of the Nicaraguan embassy early today.

They left after about an hour under an agreement with unidentified Nicaraguan officials, police said.

Two guards were reported injured slightly and taken to hospital for treatment. One suffered a lacerated hand in a scuffle outside the embassy and the other sustained an arm injury.

Beat prices name of game

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Commission on Inflation, the government's price watchdog agency would like to introduce a new game: Beat the Consumer Price Index.

Every month, when the government releases its latest cost-of-living figures, as measured by the consumer price index, people will decide: "I can keep my personal cost-of-living increase far below that."

It shouldn't be hard, said George Orser, commission executive director in an interview Thursday. For example:

— If beef prices get too high, the consumer can substitute pork or chicken.

— When out-of-season oranges get expensive as now, the consumer can switch to locally-grown fruit.

— When prices of non-vital products exceed the personal tolerance level of the consumer, just don't buy them.

Orser finds it disturbing many people assume any price increase reflected in the index automatically finds its way into their household budget.

The imaginary Statistics Canada shopper who buys the "basket of goods and services" — the 400 items assumed by government to be typical of an average consumer's monthly purchases — has no option but to purchase the same products every trip.

The index includes many items that can easily be avoided or postponed — such as jogging shoes, disposable diapers and doughnuts.

'Beat the CPI' is typical of the style of the commission, Orser says. It believes the best way to get a handle on inflation is by persuasion, not searching out culprits then pointing its finger.

Since the commission was established in March, it has not found a single price increase or wage settlement excessively high.

Cabbies jam N.Y. streets

Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — More than a thousand cab drivers, protesting what they called an inadequate fare increase for soaring gasoline prices, created colossal traffic jams in New York City Wednesday by slowing their vehicles to a crawl on major roads during the rush hour.

The drivers blocked bridges, tunnels and highways leading to airports and drove abreast curb-to-curb through the Wall Street financial district.

On the Queensboro Bridge linking Manhattan and Queens over the East River, fist fights erupted between irate motorists late to work and the cabbies, who had climbed out of their vehicles to stop traffic on the roadway.

One cab driver was charged with attempting to run over a policeman in the middle of the bridge as the officer tried to unsnarl traffic. Further downtown on Park Avenue, four other cabbies were arrested after they allegedly pulled over an auto, broke its windows, slashed its tires and then fought with the car's three occupants.

Police estimated that more than a thousand cab drivers took part in the protest which lasted more than six hours.

Mayor Edward Koch was clearly upset at the demonstration which caused tens of thousands of New Yorkers to be late during the morning rush hour.

"I believe such individuals should be suspended," the mayor said as reports of the clogged streets flowed into City Hall.

Koch warned that if another demonstration erupted he would seek to have the drivers brought up before New York City's Taxi and Limousine Commission, which could impose strict penalties including the suspension of licenses.

The commission authorized a 15-cent fare increase last week to cover the rising costs of gasoline. But a coalition of independent cab drivers launched the protest Wednesday, contending that the increase was not enough.

7 killed in Alps climbing disaster

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — The worst single mountain-climbing accident in the French Alps in about 15 years left seven dead, another missing and believed dead and four injured.

It was believed that three French citizens, five Britons and four West Germans were in the three climbing parties involved Wednesday, but police withheld details until families were notified.

Witnesses said a group of climbers, believed to be British, fell during a climb of the Tour Ronde peak, crashing into the other groups lower down as they fell.

All the victims ended in a deep snow-filled crevasse at the foot of the peak,

One of the climbers rescued alive was a young women, found hanging from her rucksack hooked to an ice ledge.

Parolee probe

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal Solicitor-General Allan Lawrence has started a major investigation into the number of serious crimes involving prisoners on parole from jail.

"I am personally concerned about what appears to be a high incidence of offences involving persons released on parole," he said in a telephone interview.

The Edmonton police commission passed a resolution at a July 12 meeting which called for an independent inquiry into the incidence of violent crime committed by parolees.

Lawrence asked for a report on the Edmonton situation after receiving the commission's letter but said the problem is not unique to the city.

"When we look at it, we want to look at the whole scene," he said.

He said he has asked for "various reports on various incidents" and any legislative change to the parole system will depend on his findings.

Norm Koch, president of the Alberta Federation of Police Associations and the Edmonton Police Association supported the commission's call for an inquiry.

He said he supports the principle of parole and that some failures are to be expected. But he said there is a "lack of consideration for the protection of the public in relation to some of the parole releases."

Boy, 15, held

City police arrested a 15-year-old boy after a stakeout of a stolen car found parked on Rock Bay Wednesday night.

A police spokesman said a patrol officer spotted the car about 10:30 p.m. It had been reported stolen earlier from the Colwood area.

Police gave chase after the youth entered the car and caught him when he stopped the car and tried to flee on foot at Bay and Pleasant.

The boy has been charged with dangerous driving and possession of stolen property.

The spokesman said the boy also faces another charge of auto theft in connection with a car stolen in Esquimalt July 10. The vehicle was later found in Colwood.

2,000 salmon killed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hot weather and warm water have apparently caused the death of about 2,000 Chinook salmon that had been pampered for the last 12 months in the waters of False Creek.

The salmon were among 3,000 fed, checked and given medication daily by students from the British Columbia Institute of Technology. They departed this life for the Happy Swimming Grounds only three days before hundreds of children were to participate in a special Hook-a-Chinook Day.

The students in the institute's fisheries program had given the salmon a specially-prepared diet of fish, animal and soya meal, vitamins and minerals.

The water at False Creek was checked daily for salinity, oxygen content, clarity and temperatures. The fish were given regular checkups to make sure they were healthy and given baths of sea water mixed with a batericide to prevent fungus infections.

They grew to 15 inches.

Then came the recent heat wave, which has sent Vancouver temperatures to near-record levels. On Wednesday, 2,000 of the salmon died.

While officials are not certain of the cause, they suspect sun stroke.

"Fish prefer temperatures between eight and 15 degrees Celsius," said federal fisheries spokesman Heather Persons.

"Yes, we knew it was 20 degrees Celsius in the creek. But what could we do? It's pretty hard to tow them somewhere else."

Hook-a-Chinook Day has been cancelled, autopsies are planned and the surviving 1,000 fish may have to be dumped, said Ms. Persons.

Detour ahead!

Victoria will divert its tourist promotion activities to Vancouver and Seattle this year in response to the gas shortage south of the border, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Mel Cooper said Wednesday.

He told a luncheon meeting at The Empress there is little point in promoting Victoria in southern California this year if few want to drive this far.

A tourist blitz to Vancouver will be conducted in October.

"The time is right for this and we feel more Vancouver people should see Victoria."

If the blitz is successful it would keep tourist traffic high in late October and early November when it normally falls off.

Following the Vancouver blitz, boosters will continue to Seattle.

The group will consist of volunteers under the direction of the chamber and will be backed by Tourism B.C.

Organizer for the event is David Price, an official of B.C. Steamship Co., the provincial government agency operating the Princess Marguerite.

Where can we bed them all down?

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria will reach a crisis this weekend when the number of visitors will exceed the space available to accommodate them.

"Quite frankly we just don't know where we're going to put them all," says Visitors Information Centre president Ed Higgin.

The crowds will fill all 4,500 hotel rooms from Sooke to Sidney, will use all 150 emergency accommodation rooms in private Victoria houses and there will still be more and more visitors looking for beds.

The problem has been building for three years.

There was a minor crisis for six days in August last summer but the emergency housing program of 100 rooms in private homes provided the solution.

But this year there is no apparent answer.

The growth in the tourist industry — at least 15 per cent above last summer — is beyond all expectations.

In June of this year the downtown hotels reported full occupancy but there was sufficient space in the suburbs.

First sign of trouble came July 6 when almost all 4,500 hotel rooms in the region were booked.

It eased for a couple of days and then, on July 10, it returned with a rush and the emergency housing program had to be implemented using the 150 rooms in private homes.

The crunch came three weeks earlier than last year and the evidence is it will get even worse.

The emergency housing service has become a daily program. More residents will need to open their doors to tourists and even then there may not be enough.

"It appears this weekend we are going to have to divert some latecomers up to Duncan or Nanaimo," Higgin said.

Higgin views the crush with mixed emotions. The staff of six full-time members plus seven summer help is rushed off its feet, despite the increase of two from last summer.

The extra workers, mostly university students, are putting in long hours.

At the same time the problem has its bright side, Higgin said.

"We are demonstrating to investors that we need more hotel space by next summer. There is no point in telling investors that. We have to show them by having overflow crowds. That is the only way to convince them."

He said there are reports the city can count on an additional 300 hotel rooms by next summer. But this still won't be nearly enough.

Not if the tourist flow continues to increase at its present rate.

Don Nixon, the VIC staff member in charge of the accommodation program, agrees the city probably won't be able to house all the tourists expected this weekend.

"The occupancy rate is running between 105 per cent and 110 per cent every night."

Phone number for the accommodation hot line is 388-4313. There are four phone lines with that number answered by a staff of three during the day and by two in the evening.

Nixon said some citizens are renting their basement rooms and even backyard campers to help out. Rents are usually low. Some charge nothing at all.

"In cases where there is no charge, the tourist usually leaves $10 under the pillow. Everyone has been helpful.

"Some citizens offer to drive down and pick up the tourists. We had a couple from Oregon who came in to thank us for sending them to a private home. They stayed up until midnight talking. It added to the enjoyment of their visit."

Murray Glazier, chairman of the Capital Region Board, says while the tourist surge is welcome, the promotional activity could backfire if the number of visitors began to exceed the total amount of space to accommodate them.

"Those who have not been able to find space will not feel friendly towards Victoria."

The city will also have to do more to make the visitors welcome.

"Tourists are becoming more sophisticated all the time. When they come back to Victoria they want to see new attractions. We have to keep changing and improving our city."

Improvements during the past five years have been remarkable, he said, but the time has come whens the city should seriously consider closing the Government Street mall to vehicle traffic.

"I see tourists standing in the middle of the street taking pictures and it is a beautiful scene — except for the trucks parked there and the traffic passing by."

It should be closed off and school bands should be down there every day entertaining the visitors and local citizens.

"But most important of all, Glazier said, additional hotel space must be provided or tourists are going to be complaining — and with justification. There have already been several reports of hotels turning people away despite the fact they had confirmed reservations.

"That does not create a good impression for Victoria."

Income tax fraud outweighs welfare rip-off, study shows

By JANE COVERNTON
Times Staff

The rate of welfare fraud is lower than the rate of income tax fraud, according to a booklet prepared by two University of Victoria social workers.

The booklet — Welfare Rights and Gain — demolishes the myth that the welfare system is being ripped off, says co-author Marjorie Martin.

"When people read the booklet they see that the human resources has a comprehensive system to make sure everything is checked. It is very difficult to cheat," Martin said.

The other myths about welfare that Martin and Marilyn Callahan hope to dispel are that welfare is a "fat life" and that most welfare recipients could get jobs.

Although welfare rates were increased substantially in April, the basic rate for a single person is still only $240 a month and now any special expenses are expected to be met by the monthly cheque.

Martin says that the welfare people she meets are worried about the fall when costs go up, heating bills start mounting, raincoats are needed.

To dispel the myth that welfare recipients could be working, if only they'd try, Martin quotes statistics.

She says 60 per cent of those on assistance are senior citizens or handicapped, 30 per cent are single parents, and of the remaining 10 per cent, most are marginally employable people in their 40s or 50s with health problems or a lack of education.

Why does society seem to need these myths about welfare?

Says Martin: "We're in a worrisome state because of the pace, the amount of unemployment, the uncertainty about the future of the country, high taxes, the high cost of government, the fear that government is not providing leadership.

"The welfare recipient is a high-profile scapegoat."

Martin says the new minister of human resources, Grace McCarthy, is taking a positive businesslike attitude towards assistance and is trying to clear away the myths.

The previous minister, Bill Vander Zalm, was well known for his political cries of welfare abuse.

The booklet is really about the law, not about the emotional aspects of welfare. But Martin has conducted workshops with welfare recipients

"Most of us can look forward to a raise, to things getting better. For people on welfare, it's always a downhill run. Everything gets shabby. They get physically run down. They get that bottom-of-the-heap feeling. There is no fat life on welfare."

The booklet is available in bulk from the UVic school of social work and from Community Law Offices.

'Chains co-operating'

Management problem cited at mainland co-op

The president of the V.I. Greenhouse Growers Co-operative said today his group has had excellent co-operation from the major supermarket chains in selling hothouse tomatoes.

Jim Sing of Gordon Head was reacting to a Times story Wednesday in which Saanich farmer Jack Arnaud charged that B.C. tomatoes are being left to rot in a Burnaby warehouse. The situation was caused by supermarkets dumping foreign produce on local markets, he charged.

Arnaud said he believed the dumping is part of a conspiracy by the major chains to break the price of the commodity on the local market. In fact, the wholesale price of tomatoes had dropped from $12 for a 20-pound case to $11, and California tomatoes are coming in at about $6 for a 30-pound case.

Sing didn't refute Arnaud's claims, but suggested the problem is with the management of the Western Greenhouse Growers Co-operative, not a conspiracy on the part of the chains.

"We've had a good manager here, and we've had good cooperation from the supermarkets," said Sing.

Any tomatoes not sold on local island markets have found their way to Vancouver where they've usually been sold quickly.

The Times learned that one manager recently left the Burnaby-based Western Greenhouse Growers Co-operative, and that his replacement started on Tuesday. A source within the co-operative confirmed that some of the problems had in fact stemmed from the change in management.

But John Christiansen, produce merchandising manager for Canada Safeway in B.C., suggested the problem stemmed from the growers offering overripe tomatoes on the Vancouver market.

Sing said that with proper management tomatoes could be held for at least a week, and if growers were picking at the right time there should be no problems with too-ripe tomatoes.

He thinks the mainland co-operative will solve its problems once its new manager takes control of the situation.

ICBC going up for Victorians

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Victoria drivers will be facing higher auto insurance rates when a new bill ending discrimination in setting auto insurance premiums introduced Wednesday is fully in force.

Victoria, with a low accident total that has resulted in low insurance rates, is one of the areas that will face higher premiums under the new system.

In introducing Bill 33, the Automobile Insurance Non-Discrimination Act, Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy said she will not allow one area to benefit because of discrimination against another area.

But full enactment of the new bill is still several years down the road, Premier Bill Bennett said.

First to go will be the discrimination against the under-25 drivers.

That could be in effect by the next insurance year, although Bennett said he is giving the Insurance Corporation of B.C. and private insurers plenty of time to prepare for the changes.

Over the next few years, discrimination based on sex, marital status and area of residence will be struck from the insurance rate books.

Bennett said the regional discrimination will likely be the last to go.

ICBC public information chief Bev Penhall said the knee-jerk reaction that all other premiums will automatically jump when the discriminatory rate structures are ended isn't necessarily true.

Although he admitted the extra revenues generated by the higher fees charged under-age drivers and other groups now deemed to be discriminated against amounts to millions of dollars annually, Penhall said ICBC is currently investigating different ways of compensating that loss.

He said private insurance companies are convinced a general rate increase is inevitable, but ICBC isn't so sure. He said he is unable to elaborate because the government-controlled corporation is still examining the alternatives.

But he hinted there could be some surprises when the new rates are established.

McCarthy said the aim of the new bill is to end all classifications of drivers except for one — good and bad drivers.

"We believe that a young, safe driver should pay the same for his car insurance as a mature, safe driver," she said.

Private insurers will be forced to comply with the regulations at the same time as ICBC.

Bennett said the bill is the fulfilment of a long-standing Social Credit promise that like the court system, says no one is presumed guilty until he or she has had an accident.

"There will no longer be guilt by association," the premier said.

Bennett conceded rates in some areas will have to go up, but the increases will be phased in over a period of time.

The decreases for those who benefit from the ending of the discrimination will be more evident, he said.

Bennett compared the rate structure to the rates changed by B.C. Hydro.

Rates are the same all over the province although it is obviously cheaper to service some areas than others.

Like hospitals and schools, all British Columbians share the benefits and spread the costs.

Bennett said he is expecting opposition from some private insurers because the government is going against old, established ways.

Sponsoring cost for Viet family put at $12,000

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Canadians interested in sponsoring a refugee should be prepared for an $8,000 to $10,000 dent in their pocketbooks.

That's the amount Victoria immigration officer Gerald Elliot says a typical family of four may cost sponsors in the first year.

Some church leaders feel the figure could be even higher.

Canon Bob MacRae, rector of St. John's Anglican estimates the average outlay will be about $12,000.

"It's a huge committment," he said in an interview Wednesday, "and one which I don't think many people are aware of."

MacRae, who is Canadian representative on the World Council of Churches's commission on inter-church aid, refugee and world services, said unless the government is prepared to provide more financial help to sponsoring citizens, the plan to admit 50,000 Indochinese refugees over the next two years may not be realized.

The government has agreed to sponsor one refugee for each brought into Canada under private sponsorship.

The total program could cost as much as $200 million jointly shared by the public and private sectors.

MacRae noted the private sponsor signs a binding contract with the federal government promising to pay all living, medical and resettle-

Carter firings begin

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Carter today accepted the resignations of Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and HEW Secretary Joseph Califano in the first changes in his heralded administration reshuffling.

Patricia Roberts Harris, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, will replace Califano, the White House announced.

In further evidence of the shakeup that began Tuesday at the cabinet level, administration officials were instructed Wednesday to rate high-level employees on everything from average work hours to ability to get along with other employees.

The two resignations — actually firings — were apparently the first step in the moves that Carter has begun in an attempt to gain public support for his presidency and win re-election in 1980.

Ordered by newly-appointed Chief of Staff, Hamilton Jordan, and delivered in sealed packages marked "eyes only," the 30-question forms will be used to evaluate personnel down to the deputy assistant secretary level.

The 30 questions provided an insight into the values that Carter prizes in employees.

Hard work, intelligence, stability and creativity were stressed. So were flexibility, ego, and a willingness to carry out policy with which the official personally disagreed.

For instance, one question asked what percentage of

Parks, woods closed

Logging companies today closed off most of their land and six regional parks have been closed or partially closed because of tinder dry conditions in South Vancouver Island forests.

Logging companies are also confining logging operations to early morning shifts because of the high fire hazards.

While there have been no serious fires on southern Vancouver Island fire protection area, which takes in Jordan River and the Gulf Islands, a two-acre blaze on the south side of Triangle Mountain Wednesday afternoon did cause some concern.

It was only brought under control after four ground tankers and 30 men were brought in to fight it.

Saanich firemen Wednesday evening also extinquished three grass fires believed started by careless smokers.

Regional parks foreman Bert Image said the upland areas of East Sooke Park are closed to the public.

Francis Park, Horth Hill, Mill Hill, Bear Hill and Thetis Lake Park trails, are closed.

Canadians living longer

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians are living longer, but women will continue to outlive men, say the latest mortality tables prepared by Statistics Canada.

The new figures show women's life spans have risen by more than a year to 77.48 years from 76.36 years in the old tables. Men will live an average 70.19 years, up from 69.34 years.

The revisions are based on the 1976 census and deaths between 1975 and 1977. The last statistics were based on the 1971 census and deaths between 1970 and 1972.

Alert Bay doctor to keep his licence

VANCOUVER (CP) — The doctor found negligent by a coroner's jury in the death of an 11-year-old native Indian girl at Alert Bay will not have his medical licence suspended.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of British Columbia found Dr. Jack Pickup is competent and demonstrated more than adequate skills in diagnosis and management, said a statement issued today by college registrar Dr. J. A. Hutchison.

The inquest found Renee Smith died Jan. 22 of peritonitis and a ruptured appendix "due to negligence on the part of Dr. Pickup to supply adequate medical care and procedures," three days after she was admitted to St. George's Hospital in Alert Bay with severe abdominal pains.

The college statement said certain specific recommendations were made to Dr. Pickup, the only medical practitioner at Alert Bay located on Cormorant Island, off the east coast of Vancouver Island.

Dr. Hutchison said one recommendation related to the fact that Alert Bay is no longer isolated and it is easier to send critically-ill patients out to hospitals with better facilities for surgery.

The other, he said, was personal.

There was evidence at the inquest last month that Dr. Pickup had a drinking problem, but Dr. Hutchison said a provincial joint hospitals advisory committee found no evidence that Pickup was ever impaired by alcohol while practising at St. George's hospital.

The joint committee report, tabled in the legislature Tuesday, said native Indians at Alert Bay should have more input into health care there.

However, it recommended against holding a public inquiry as called for by Indian spokesmen following the girl's death.

Indians in Alert Bay repeated their call Wednesday for a full public inquiry and Nimpkish band leader Roy Cranmer said he did not think the appointment of Rev. Eric Powell as the personal representative of Health Minister Bob McClelland "would change things too much around here."

The college statement said there was no record of any complaints against Pickup prior to the Renee Smith case.

"Although the college has no authority to direct physicians, there will be a continuing effort to find another physician for this area to provide relief . . . and so that a choice of physicians is available," it said.

"They would hope that their action (in making recommendations) will help this community to recover from the tribulations that have beset it in recent months."

Beat prices name of game

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Commission on Inflation, the government's price watchdog agency would like to introduce a new game: Beat the Consumer Price Index.

Every month, when the government releases its latest cost-of-living figures, as measured by the consumer price index, people will decide: "I can keep my personal cost-of-living increase far below that."

It shouldn't be hard, said George Orser, commission executive director in an interview Thursday. For example:

— If beef prices get too high, the consumer can substitute pork or chicken.

— When out-of-season oranges get expensive as now, the consumer can switch to locally-grown fruit.

— When prices of non-vital products exceed the personal tolerance level of the consumer, just don't buy them.

Orser finds it disturbing many people assume any price increase reflected in the index automatically finds its way into their household budget.

The imaginary Statistics Canada shopper who buys the "basket of goods and services" — the 400 items assumed by government to be typical of an average consumer's monthly purchases — has no option but to purchase the same products every trip.

The index includes many items that can easily be avoided or postponed — such as jogging shoes, disposable diapers and doughnuts.

'Beat the CPI' is typical of the style of the commission, Orser says. It believes the best way to get a handle on inflation is by persuasion, not searching out culprits then pointing its finger.

Since the commission was established in March, it has not found a single price increase or wage settlement excessively high.
